CARDS TO CALL CITY HELP FOR JOBS ON FARM

Thousands to Be Distributed In Factories, Stores In Move To Muster Farming Aid.

BIG PROGRAM MAPPED

10 Industrial Workers Already Respond, Use Spare Time To Help Make Hay.

Thousands of cards to register Richland county farmers and Mansfield industrial workers for the emergency farm labor program will be distributed in the near future through farm organizations, industries, stores and clubs.

These cards, on which the farmer will indicate his needs and the worker his willingness to give some of his time, will form the working basis for one of the most important projects of the war-producing food for fighting units here and abroad and for workers at home.

Registration plants and other details to make the emergency labor program workable were mapped last night at a meeting of publicity and speakers committees both sub-committees of the Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee.

Although the program has not yet been completely set up, ten workers have already registered and today they are helping make hay. A group of Westinghouse engineers are working on the farm of a co-worker, Ed Bletz, who lives five miles south of Mansfield. Roy Beck, Joseph Heilman, Joseph Reifenberger, E. O. Morton, James Peck, John Davis, K. L. Woodman, Frank Breckenridge, W. A. Johnson and B. F. Parr hope to get in the hay from seven acres this afternoon.

George B. Ganyard, county extension agent through whose office the program will be co-ordinated, explained he has had a number of requests from farmers needing help with hay mowing, which must be done immediately.

"Not only the workers but many of the farmers themselves do not realize the seriousness of the hay situation. In the coming year there will be 10 to 15 per cent less grain per grain consuming animal unit. Ordinarily if a farmer moved as much hay as he could and then stopped it wouldn't make any difference, but this year the hay and lots of it will be needed to make up the lack of grain in feeding stock," Ganyard said.

He pointed out that the biggest

The largest number of arrests were made in New York City where 161 were seized. In Cleveland, agents of the FBI seized 27; Detroit, 25; Pittsburgh, 25; Cincinnati, 15; Indianapolis, 10.

In making the arrests, Hoover stressed the urgency of all persons to carry their registration certificates and latest classification cards with them at all times.

Ruhr Steel Centers Pounded as Air War Thunders To Climax

600 Bombers In Newest Attack

Bochum-Gelsenkirchen Left In Flames, U. S. Fliers Shoot Down 100 Foe Craft In Two Battles.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson, commanding general of the Second U. S. Army Air Force, said today that American heavy bomber losses over Germany have been running around 6 per cent and that "if we can stay under 10 per cent, we can take it." He estimated that probably 50 per cent of the crews shot down over Germany ultimately turn up as prisoner of war.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Royal Air Force bombers early today again attacked the industrial Ruhr valley of Germany in strength, centering their assault on the Bochum-Gelsenkirchen district.

The air ministry announced that 30 of its craft were missing, indicating a probable force of about 600 of Britain's biggest bombers took part in the assault.

Large blazes were started in the war manufactures centers noted for their production of coal, iron, steel, tin and zinc.

While the bombers maintained the devastating cycle of darkness assaults against Germany British Intruder planes attacked airfields and other targets in the occupied low countries. One Nazi night fighter was reported destroyed by the Intruders.

The four-motored bombers, Lancasters, Stirlings and Halifaxes, fought numerous combats with other Nazi interceptor planes, destroying at least two.

Clouds made it difficult to observe full results of the bombing of the Bochum-Gelsenkirchen district.

Bochum lies 11 miles west of bomb-blasted Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen is situated northwest of Bochum.

The nazis in their first acknowledgement of the latest attack claimed the destruction of only 23 British planes. The assault was the seventh consecutive raid in darkness on Germany and the 11th in 14 nights on Axis industries.

"Last night our bombers continued the offensive against the Ruhr with a heavy attack on the Bochum - Gelsenkirchen district," the air ministry communique said.

NAZI WHINING GROWS LOUDER

Goebbels Calls U. S., Britain Vandals For Turning Tables In Aerial Warfare.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—In his horror and hate campaign designed to stir German morale dented by continued heavy Allied aerial attacks, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Germany's propaganda minister, lashed out today to call Americans cultural vandals and military barbarians.

Speaking at Munich, at the opening of the seventh German art exhibition, he said "British and American terror planes "were destroying" in a short hour, cultural possessions which the centuries have built" and to which the United States and Britain "made very slight contribution."

Of the Americans Goebbels said "towns like Nuernberg and Munich or Florence and Venice contain more of the eternal expression of occidental culture than the whole of the North American continent. x x x

Masons Rained Out Just After Picnic Dinner Gong Rings

Nearly 1,000 Masons returned home from the annual Masonic picnic last night at South park in a more or less dampened condition. They were rained out.

All but 100 of the entire group had been served when the storm broke, scattering the picnickers in all directions. A few weathered the storm under the shelter which was not exactly dry.

Masonic officials said today there is rain at every two out of six annual picnics.

Although the storm did away with plans for a band concert and ball game, those who remained until the rain had subsided had musical entertainment and pitched horseshoes.

HOMES DAMAGED IN FREAK STORM

Lightning Strikes Residences In Mansfield, Crestline as Mercury Hits 93.

Homes in Mansfield and Crestline were damaged by lightning and wind when a storm swept across central Richland and Crawford counties shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday to bring temporary relief from the heat wave which sent the mercury to a season's record of 93 degrees in Mansfield Friday afternoon.

Heavy rain accompanied the freak storm with Mansfield receiving its first good shower in two weeks while areas immediately south and east of the city had no rain. The rainfall in Manstield totaled about half an inch.

Lightning struck electric wires leading into the home of L. J. Steele, 555 Lida street, but damage was slight, firemen reported. A tree on Penn avenue was shattered by a bolt and large branches from trees all over the city were blown into streets and on roofs.

In Crestline, the electric wiring in the home of Azel Laughlin was damaged by lightning. A large tree fell across West Bucyrus street and held up traffic until it was removed. Porches on homes and other trees throughout the village were damaged by the wind.

The mercury began to climb again soon after the storm passed and the forecast was for more heat and scattered thundershowers this afternoon and tonight. It was 90 at noon today.

Cleveland reported 97 degrees yesterday, a record for June 25. Columbus had a high of 94.

CRITICS MUM

Won't Attack Army Fund Bill Now; Criticism Due Later.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The senate Truman committee investigating the war effort has decided to let the $71,500,000,000 war department appropriation bill pass the senate without attack, but will disclose soon "extravagances" in both the army and navy.

Chairman Harry S. Truman, D., Mo., said he would withhold any criticism of the two services until "all the facts are in." The senate takes up the record-breaking measure today. Quick passage was expected and with little debate. The house already has passed it.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla. chairman of the appropriations subcommittee which handled the bill, said the enormous fund would finance most of remaining army construction and that future allocations would be smaller.

BOY, 3, VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

Mansfield Youngster First to Have Disease in 3 Years.

First case of infantile paralysis in Mansfield in more than two years was reported today by Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, who said a three-year-old boy had been stricken and placed under quarantine.

Dr. Wild said investigation of the case had failed so far to show where the child contracted the disease. He urged parents to check on the purity of their children's drinking water and the water in which they swim, to prevent spread of the disease.

HIT BRUTALITY

Soviets Charge Nazis With Mass Poisoning, Torture.

MOSCOW—(AP)—German troops were accused in a Russian inquiry commission's indictment today of having carried out mass poisonings, executions and torture of Russians in the Kursk and Kharkov regions southwest of Moscow before the Red army's spring offensive drove the Germans back.

The commission said its charges were substantiated by stories of eyewitnesses.

Tass, official news agency which reported the commission's findings, also reported that reconstruction work is well under way in reconquered territory.

TWO YOUTHS HELD

MARIETTA — (UP) — William Voltz, 20, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Lowell Blake, 20, of Washington, D. C., were held today on charges of transporting a stolen automobile across a state line. The youths were alleged to be AWOL sailors.

2 HELD HERE AS RCAF DESERTERS

Youths Had Been Befriended By Scores, Even Obtained Own Ration Books.

Two members of the Royal Canadian Air force who have been befriended by dozens of Mansfielders during the past eight weeks and yesterday obtained food rationing books from the county rationing board were held today for Canadian authorities as deserters.

Arrested Friday afternoon in a Mansfield tavern, Pvts. Roger Gosselin, 22, and R. J. P. Bachand, 24, are in the city jail, held at the request of the British consul at Toronto. Police Chief Meade K. Bates said Canadian authorities informed him they would come after the pair. Both had posed as RCAF sergeants, officers said.

The two, one of whom has been in Mansfield at intervals since April 19, were taken into custody by Detectives Howard Schuck and Herbert Palmer after officers became suspicious of the fliers' long stay in the city.

Police Chief Bates said the youths had lived here for weeks, apparently with little expense to themselves. They roomed at a Pleasant avenue address. They frequented restaurants and taverns where men and women bought food and drinks for them.

Many Meat Stores Face Closing Says Retail Spokesman

CHICAGO—(AP)—Hundreds of the nation's meat markets, including one-half of the approximate 6,000 in Chicago, world's livestock center, may be forced to close within the next 10 days because of the beef shortage, a spokesman for the retail dealers predicted today.

John A. Kotal, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said the beef shortage, threatening requirements to the armed forces, resulted from office of price administration regulations.

Conditions in New York and Seattle, Wash., he said, were "very bad," while Cincinnati and Cleveland were faced with a situation similar to that in Chicago. Kotal's statement came as beef supplies throughout the country dwindled toward the vanishing point and followed a suggestion by the American Meat Institute to

Anti-Strike Bill Passed Over Veto

President Reversed In Whirlwind Action, Miners Angry.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Congress, in a stunning reversal of President Roosevelt, put American war production today under the whiplash of an anti-strike law so stringent union leaders proclaimed it a "major disaster." Republicans saw in it a mortal blow to the administration and resentful coal miners exploded in a new revolt.

Whirlwind action on the Connally-Smith-Harness bill forced the long-awaited issue yesterday.

Anti-climax set in today and with it came doubt and confusion on the full effects of the law, how it could be applied to the thing that inspired it—the coal walkouts—and a certain amount of fear as to the ultimate reaction at the workbenches of the "arsenal of democracy."

Attention focused on the coal fields where 250,000 miners—about half the total—had failed to return to work despite orders from John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers ending the recent walkout, the third in seven weeks. On top of that, passage of the law was followed immediately by fresh strikes by 20,000 more miners.

Mr. Roosevelt touched off a momentous day when he vetoed the anti-strike law as more likely to foment labor troubles than to settle them. Except for the coal strike, he insisted labor had kept its no-strike pledge since Pearl Harbor.

With speed unequalled in recent years, the senate and the house promptly overrode his veto to make law the measure providing fines and imprisonment for persons instigating or aiding wartime strikes in government-operated industries, and outlawing stoppages in other war plants without a ballot of the workers. The law also broadens the powers of the War Labor Board.

So rapid and unexpected was the congressional action that the justice department was unprepared to say how it would proceed to enforce the new law.

Nor was there any pronouncement from the War Labor Board concerning its plans now that it was given power to force the attendance of witnesses. Lacking subpena authority in the past, the

CLAIMS DENIED

Miners Refused Benefits For Work Stoppage Period.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Hugh S. Jenkins, state director of the bureau of unemployment compensation, today denied claims of 462 miners, employed in 23 Ohio mines, for unemployment compensation for the work stoppage of June 1-7.

Jenkins ruled the men were out of work because of a labor dispute and not entitled to compensation under an amendment to the BUC law adopted in 1941.

When the 1939 mine contract expired Herschel C. Atkinson, former BUC head, denied benefits on the ground the men were on strike. The board of review held there was no strike and benefits were paid.

FDR SUFFERS SECOND BLOW IN TWO DAYS

Upper House Rejects Price Roll-Back at Expense Of Taxpayers.

PROTECTS FARMERS

Prohibits Forcing Cuts Upon Agriculture; Votes on Two Proposals.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The senate voted today to forbid subsidy payments to reduce food prices, but took pains to see that any price cuts are not rolled back on the farmer. The vote was the second major setback for the Roosevelt administration in two days. The first came yesterday in the overriding of the anti-strike bill veto.

The senate then voted, 19 to 13, to transfer to War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis complete control over food prices and distribution.

The Davis action was taken on a proposal by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) Congressional observers believed that its effect would be to set up Davis as a virtual food "czar" —a proposal which President Roosevelt has vigorously opposed.

Then, by voice vote, the senate passed the bill containing these provisions—a bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation for two years. The senate's bill is similar to one passed yesterday by the house.

The senate voted twice on the question of roll-back subsidies—and each time rejected the use of government funds to effect price reductions.

The first vote came on a proposal by Sen. Bennett C. Clark (D., Mo.) to repeal the subsidy section of the 1942 price control act, except for purposes of equalizing transportation costs thrown out of balance by the war, or encouraging increased production of strategic materials (such as copper, lead and zinc) needed for the war effort.

Clark's proposal was approved by a vote of 39 to 37.

Clark's amendment would have halted immediately the OPA's program, already under way, to roll back the retail price of butter, meat and coffee to Sept. 15, 1942, levels through payments of subsidies to processors.

Farm state senators were aware that Price Administrator Prentiss

Drivers of Food, Beverage Trucks End 1-Day Strike

Wholesale food and beverage deliveries were resumed in Mansfield today following the settlement of a one-day strike involving 30 drivers from five companies.

The strike resulted in a tie-up of deliveries of beer and some foodstuffs for the day although the Truck Drivers Union Local 40 supplied wholesale houses with workers to move perishable goods so that no loss resulted.

Demanding 13 cents an hour raise the drivers went on strike yesterday morning and returned to their jobs this morning after partially gaining what they sought.

Jay Stofer, president of the truck drivers union, said the strikers had settled for an immediate raise of eight cents an hour and the right to negotiate for the remaining five originally demanded.

FORT FAIRFIELD, Me.—(U.P.)—At least nine persons, including four farm workers, were killed today when an army bomber on a routine flight crashed and burned on Carl Rasmussen's potato farm off the Caribou-Presque Isle road.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Instructions have been issued by the British army and navy and the RAF that no uniforms can be worn while campaigning for political office. The order applies not only to platform appearances but to all kinds of campaigning.

Only scattered by-elections are to be held before the end of the war, but this ruling looks ahead to preparations being made for the first big general election since 1935, which is expected as soon as Germany is defeated.

Clapper

Unlike American conservatives, the British Tories have followed liberal policies at times. For instance, the Conservatives advanced broad housing subsidies, social security, milk programs in the schools, and some quasi-socialistic measures relating to electric power and broadcasting.

Now the Conservatives are showing adaptability again, while the Labor party is going to seed.

The Conservatives are preparing to bring in a new political generation in the first election at the end of the war. The party has decided by resolution to break away from the practice of virtually selling seats to rich men, and to hunt for young men of ability regardless of wealth or connections. The Tories are now casting about for RAF fliers and other promising youngsters out of the services to run for parliament. The party's intentions seem to be against loading up with young reactionaries, because the British Tories long ago learned that the best way to stay in power is to take the punch out of the Laborites by sponsoring reasonable social-service measures.

As a result the Conservatives are expected to hold the bulk of their overwhelming strength in commons, and to control postwar policies.

In the Labor party the process of ossification is taking place. That is considered one of the tragedies of British politics. The defeat of Herbert Morrison, who is head and shoulders above every one else, in a grudge fight at the recent party conference, illustrates what the party is up against. The Labor party is dominated by old-line trade unions, and it is a frequent practice to put up retired union officials for seats in parliament. Commons is used as a kind of honorary retirement farm. The old-line union leaders, like the American Federation of Labor graybeards in America, hold everything in a tight grip through union bossism. The result is that young men who want to find a place in British public life find the Labor party's gates locked and go elsewhere.

One unfortunate possibility is that a more volatile new generation, unwilling to join the Tories even as members of the more progressive wing, will have no place to go except to the extreme left wing. There is no Communist movement of any strength here, but the stratification of the Labor party, and its shrinking influence and dismal future, help create a situation in which the left-wingers might find themselves thrown together in a new and more energetic group. Much depends on how successful Britain is in easing unemployment in the first postwar stages.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—It is interesting and encouraging to note that, as of the date of the Detroit race riot, President Roosevelt has adopted a new policy regarding unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings.

President Roosevelt is against them now. In recent times he was indifferent to unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings in that same city of Detroit and elsewhere in the state of Michigan.

Pegler

For the riots in the centers of the motor industry under the auspices of the CIO were no less unlawful and insurrectionary than the more recent trouble in Detroit, and the worst offense that the president could see in them was multiple trespass in the socalled sitdown strike which was not, in fact, a sitdown but mass vandalism and pillage, accompanied by bloodshed and general public terror and the breakdown of municipal and state government, all directed from a central headquarters and executed by riot leaders appointed for that purpose, many of whom were imported from other states.

Those unlawful and insurrectionary proceedings laid whole cities helpless at the feet of criminal terrorists who belonged to the president's political movement and the law-abiding people, who, of course, vastly outnumbered the rioters, were deprived of the protection of government. In the end, the leaders of the insurrection got their way and certain of them have since been courted and consulted by the very government which they were allowed to flout on matters having to do with the fight of the American people to establish the four freedoms everywhere in the world.

It is no answer to all this to say that it is water over the dam because it happened some years ago and in a time of peace. The record remains and it is the worse because Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward that lawlessness and insurrection was such that he rewarded the defaulting governor with a place on the supreme court of the United States.

One of the freedoms to which the president has pledged the nation is freedom from fear.

This means, specifically the fear of lawless aggression and brutalitarian might which was the very thing that terrorized those Michigan committees in those days and drove thousands of law-abiding citizens into a lawless organization which the president encouraged, under outlaw leaders for whom he had not the slightest rebuke. There still exists a long record of moving pictures taken from plant windows showing men and women under attack by members of this lawless and insurrectionary force as they tried to go to their lawful employment. It shows these rioters carrying cudgels, rioters slugging defenseless citizens whose government had abandoned them to the fury of the mob, rioters blockading the streets so that even the bravest of the good citizens could not go to their jobs.

In the end they had to join the lawless and insurrectionary group, pay taxes into its treasury and submit themselves to its own laws and discipline because the rule of fear had been imposed on them with the consent of the same government which now undertakes to guarantee to all the peoples of the world that they need fear no aggression by the mighty. And it has been fear of the same brutal treatment, even violent death, which has forced millions of other Americans, all over the United States, to abandon their rights and dignity as free human beings and citizens and pay hundreds of millions of dollars in taxes and extortions to the cohorts of Mr. Roosevelt's political movement.

There is a temptation to say, and some have said, that this was a good insurrection even though it may have been slightly lawless around the edges because it was an action in a class war. Even if it had been such it still would have been a lawless insurrection, no less evil than a fight between races, but it was not a class war. It was a completely lawless and violent overthrow of government whose victims were almost all plain toilers of the group known as the working class, and that demonstration under the license of the government's connivance and default put most of the rest of the people into such fear that elsewhere by the million they have not even resisted.

Every day I receive letters from victims of this terror, some of them with sons fighting to extend the four freedoms, including that freedom from fear, to all the peoples of the world who, in unconscious irony, close with the earnest request: "Do not disclose my name or I might lose my job or even my life."

ATTACKS CLASH OF NEW DEAL'S 'DOUBLE POLICY'

Gov. Bricker Tells Wisconsin Bar He'll Soon Define His Views of World Affairs.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio today defined his "foundation" for American participation in world affairs with new-found precision strongly suggesting his attention to seek the Republican presidential nomination.

He attacked the "tragic inconsistency" of New Deal foreign and domestic policy in an address before the Wisconsin Bar association last night and promised "at a time not too far removed, to speak of the possibilities of American participation in world affairs, in some detail and with specife suggestions."

Close observers of the third-term Republican governor noted he had extended his remarks about America's place in the world to a point beyond any previous utterances.

"I join with those who wish to lend the strong arm of American help in the solution of world problems," Bricker said. "We must match our considered foreign policy with rational domestic policies."

Stating his "basic principles" Bricker said. "We must match our considered foreign policy with rational domestic policies."

Stating his "basic principles" for American domestic economy, Bricker said:

"I choose America of free enterprise and equality of opportunity," not the position of men who "contemplate the present state of American enterprise as mature, washed up, finished and ready for the socialist undertaker."

"Dozens of official new dealers have said just that of our economy. In fact, so many have expressed that view that we can only conclude that such is the official New Deal party faith."

"Not all increased federal regulation of the past ten years should be abolished, he said, "nor am I going to be intimidated by the shop-worn New Deal question begging cry of "what would you abolish."

"In my good time I propose to be very specific on that point and my specifications will not be pleasant reading in some high quarters in Washington."

New Deal leaders "have been telling us that sound economic policies require continuous inflation" at the time the president and secretary of state "have exalted the mission of America in promoting foreign trade," he said.

"No official pronouncement, no matter how exalted, can reconcile a policy of inflation with a policy of increased foreign trade."

The United States can meet postwar competition of low-wage nations by superior productive efficiency if not hampered by "destructive inflation," he said.

The fish he "sponsored" in the Charles Mill Sportsmen's club fishing contest for Mansfield youths was caught so quickly that City Auditor Paul L. Kelley thinks it must have been ill and unable to elude the hook. A boy came to the auditor's office yesterday with the numbered tag from the crappie caught in North lake and claimed the $3 prize offered by Auditor Kelley. Asked if the fish appeared sick when he pulled it from the lake, the boy replied that "It did act a little funny, but I ate it anyway."

According to Richland county commissioners there has been a marked decrease in complaints and petitions received at their office in the past six months to a year. They attribute this to the war, pointing out that people's minds are occupied by other things, and that they have more money than previously, therefore not so apt to ask for new country projects or improvements.

CLEVELANDERS ACT TO CRUSH BLACK MARKET

Mayor, Church, Civic Groups Unite to Stamp Out Illegal Sales.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—Mayor Frank J. Lausche today planned a program to be inaugurated by civic, church, educational and women's groups to put the responsibility for crushing the black market in meat up to Cleveland householders.

In a meeting with a committee made up of government and civic officials, the mayor, with almost unanimous concurrence of the group, said that the public was entirely to blame for the prevalence of illegal operations among meat slaughterers and dealers.

There are black market operators all along the line in meat production, from the producer to the consumer, it was pointed out, but it was believed that pressure brought by consumers would be the best means of curbing the practice where government officials have not already investigated.

The regional OPA has several cases under investigation at the present time and will continue its probe as long as the black market prevails. This pledge was made by Birkett L. Williams, regional OPA director.

Williams, a former automobile dealer, answering complaints of George Bubel, secretary of the Cleveland retail meat dealers association, that the "little" retailer was losing money in the market now, declared, "I'd a damn sight rather lose some money on some of my automobiles than send my son to the army, which I did and lost him." The younger Williams was killed in action.

Bubel placed the blame for the thriving black markets squarely on the OPA administration in Washington.

He said there was plenty of livestock on midwest farms but because of OPA regulations, cost of shipping, and the quota system in packing houses, the stock was being kept on farms and the public was getting less meat than it should.

It was revealed that the government is taking 45 per cent of the meat handled at government-inspected slaughter houses. This is used for army, navy and lend-lease shipments. Slaughter houses have a government quota for civilian needs, too, and one of the major problems in stopping black market sales is to see that slaughterers do not butcher more than their civilian quota.

Lausche said that the committee realized that there was too little meat for the demand, but he wanted to know if the meat was being divided fairly among all communities.

TWO RUHR STEEL CENTERS LASHED IN NEWEST RAID

Air War Thunders to Climax, Yanks Shoot Down 100 Enemy Fighters.

"Large fires were seen but clouds made it difficult to observe results fully.

"There were many combats with enemy fighters, two of which were destroyed. Thirty of our aircraft are missing.

"Intruders attacked air fields and other targets in the low countries and destroyed an enemy night fighter."

The raid on Bochum was that city's fifth aerial attack of the war. Three previous heavy blows were struck in March, May and early this month.

Following the last attack on Bochum on June 12, when two-ton bombs were dropped at the rate of five each minute, neutral sources reported that hardly a street in the town went undamaged.

The Bochum-Gelsenkirchen area produces one-third of the coal mined in the Ruhr. Bochum also is packed with vital chemical plants.

Military observers agree that the battle of the Ruhr is building up to a tremendous climax as the powerful series of raids on vital targets continues.

June now has witnessed full-scale attacks on Dusseldorf, Muenster, Huls, Oberhausen, Krefeld, Muelheim and Elberfeld, plus numerous other Ruhr towns which did not get concerted bomb weights as chief objectives.

The Ruhr probably has had 30,000 tons of saturation bombing in the last 14 weeks and competent observers believe every ton scored real damage.

From the wording of the air ministry communique and German admissions Bochum had an "extremely heavy raid." The Ruhr probably received another 1,500 tons of bombs last night from a force of four-engined aircraft probably as powerful as those which attacked Muenster and Muelheim.

The new raid by the RAF followed a strong raid in daylight under adverse weather conditions by squadrons of American Flying Fortresses into northwest Germany and the saturation bombardment in the dark hours early yesterday by British planes on Elberfeld, western portion of the twin industrial towns of Elberfeld and Barmen which make up the city of Wuppertal.

The latter assaults were augmented by a typhoon bomber attack on the Nazi airfield at Caen, France, in the afternoon. The typhoon raid was covered by Spitfire fighters and was carried out without the loss of a single plane.

United States Eighth air force headquarters in its communique on operations of the Fortresses disclosed that 18 American planes were lost in fierce battling with German fighter formations. A large number of the German craft were known to have been destroyed but the exact figure was not announced.

In their strike at northwest Germany the Boeing forts encountered a solid wall of clouds and the ground was totally obscured and it was impossible to observe the results of the bombing.

The Germans claimed that 20 Forts were shot down and asserted that their fighter interceptors forced the Americans to jettison their bombs on the north German coast.

Yanks Destroy 100 Nazi Fighter Craft

LONDON — (INS) — Crews of American Flying Fortresses destroyed nearly 100 German fighter craft in the last two great air battles fought over the Ruhr valley and northwest Germany, United States eighth air force headquarters announced today.

Bitter battles were fought by large forces of American heavy bombers in their penetration of the Ruhr Tuesday, when they attacked Huls, and over Antwerp, Belgium, the statement said.

A prolonged engagement took place yesterday in the clouds over northwest Germany.

From these two operations 37 of the American bombers are missing. Yesterday's announcement that 18 bombers were lost was revised to 17 when one of the Fortresses earlier reported missing returned with its crew intact.

Reveal Japs Have 170 Planes at Rabaul

(By United Press)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's spokesman revealed today that the Japanese have 170 planes based at Rabaul, New Britain, and that the big enemy concentration point still is handling shipping daily despite heavy Allied raids.

Among the surface craft revealed by reconnaissance was a small converted aircraft carrier, the spokesman said. The southwestern Pacific communique reported the lightest air activity in weeks. It was confined to a raid on the Madang area of New Guinea and an attack by a Beaufort on a small convoy off New Ireland.

The Japanese claimed the destruction of 29 planes in the Solomons and 42 on the China front the past few days. The Solomons fell was run up by ground action alone, Tokyo claimed.

South Pacific fliers kindled fires at Vila, on Kolombangara island in the Solomons yesterday and the enemy ineffecitively raided the American-held Russells.

Many Meat Stores Face Closing Says Retail Spokesman

War Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes that the entire meat problem be placed before the war meat board for solution.

Kotal attributed the beef shortage to the OPA price ceiling policy of cutting the margin of profit to the point of freezing out cattle feeders for a subsequent loss of thousands of pounds of meat as lean, stringy beef goes to slaughter houses. This practice, which he said reduced potential beef supplies 20 per cent, plus the requirements for the armed forces, is forcing the closing of butcher shops, Kotal declared.

In Cleveland, George Bubel, secretary of the city meat dealers association, expressed fear of a meat shortage "for the next month or possibly longer." He said the 650 association member dealers have threatened to close but withheld action pending a meeting in about 10 days. In Cincinnati meat supplies in the city's estimated 1,000 shops dwindled slowly as 15 slaughtering plants discontinued operations.

PETRILLO HITS VOCAL RECORDS

Would Extend Ban to Singers, Makes Appeal.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The American Federation of Musicians today extended its campaign against musical recordings by bringing under its ban even records which employ only singers.

James C. Petrillo, union president, announced that although they are not within his organization's jurisdiction he was asking "name" singers not to make disks without instrumental accompaniment.

The vocal record, employing a choral background instead of an instrumental one, has been growing in popularity since the union placed a ban on musicians' producing platters.

OUTLOOK FOR DRIVERS DARK

But Eastern Motorists See Chance Of Escaping Cut.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The gasoline outlook for eastern motorists is dark, but officials today were not sure what additional secrifices might be asked of civilian drivers.

No immediate cut in the value of ration coupons is anticipated. The "A" card expires on July 21. Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown is opposed to further curtailment of the basic card except as a last resort.

Officials pointed out that the "A" coupon in the east has been cut about as far as possible—that any further step would have to be suspension.

Bombs Plaster Messina's Docks

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(INS)—A new raid by American Flying Fortresses on the strategic ferry terminal of Messina, Sicily, and a second consecutive assault by British Wellingtons on the Sardinian port of Olbia were announced today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters.

The docks and railway marshalling yards at Messina were severely pounded by the bombs dropped by the Fortresses and many fires were started.

One merchant vessel was hit and severely damaged by one of the Boeing forts while aircraft of the coastal air force attacked a medium sized merchant vessel and left it burning.

The Wellington bomber assault was made Thursday night on Olbia where many fires were left burning in the dock area and in the marshalling yards.

WHAT IS WORSHIP?

Dr. Dwight Bradley says, "Worship is the soul reaching for its counterpart; it is a thirsty land crying for rain; it is a candle in the act of being kindled; it is a small voice in the night calling for help; it is a soul standing in awe before the Universe. It is a poet enthralled by the beauty of a sunrise; it is a workman pausing a moment to listen to a strain of music; it is time flowing into eternity; it is a man climbing the altar stairs to God."

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Francis B. He made his plea in an address to the Federation of Churches at a special session in Washington Cathedral, Washington, D. C.

Racial Distinctions have been imposed upon the Catholics in Poland. The territorial occupation government set up there has decreed that the Catholic church shall have one group of churches for Germans and another for Poles, and both shall be subject to the Nazi secret police, the Gestapo. It is further decreed that the priests of the German group shall not hear confessions, administer the sacraments of baptism, the mass, or marriage for the Poles, nor give them extreme unction in the hour of death, nor bury them when dead. Poles may not enter churches of the German group, nor may Germans worship in the churches set aside for the Poles. In neither case are the churches of the respective groups free to worship in the spirit of the Christian faith, since they are subject to the unrestrained will of the very secular force of the Gestapo.

WIT AND WISDOM

Weak Knees.

There is something unexplainable about having weak knees. It does not mean that one is cowardly or unstable, nor is it an indication that a mean is weak morally. It may be best explained by a minister who said that when he was married his knees knocked together and that he wasn't afraid that he was getting the wrong woman either. All he had was a sort of "stage fright."

My friend is one before whom I may be sincere: before whom I may think aloud.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and don't forget to apply for your new gas ration book.

Told that he must pay $5 for a new "use tax" stamp before next Thursday, the A-book motorist is inclined to remark, "What's the use?"

The zone system of liquor rationing has been dropped, although the effort will probably be continued to keep sales within the temperate zone.

Anti-Strike Bill Passed Over Veto

AFTER waiting until within a few hours of expiration of the 10-day limit prescribed for action on bills passed by congress, President Roosevelt late yesterday afternoon vetoed the Connally-Smith anti-strike bill, as had been anticipated.

With commendable speed both houses of congress proceeded to override the veto and thus give statutory authority to the War Labor Board as well as provide severe penalties for strike conspirators in government-operated war industries.

Expressing approval of some sections of the anti-strike bill and disapproval of others, President Roosevelt proposed, as an alternative, that congress extend the selective service age limit to 65, thus making it possible to draft strikers into non-combat military service. Congress properly ignored this suggestion—obvious intent of which was to make such form of "military service" a penalty rather than a patriotic service in time of war.

The Connally-Smith law, which was rather hurriedly put together in an effort to avert the third strike of coal miners within two months, should not be regarded as a cure-all for labor disorders which have been disturbing the nation. It does serve to strengthen government powers in dealing with potential work stoppages through the War Labor Board and to punish strike instigators and participants. It also provides a pattern for whatever restrictive legislation may be deemed advisable, either as a war-time measure or in post-war elimination of practices of some union labor leaders which reflect unfairly on organized labor as a whole and which are against the general welfare.

Probably most impressive in the quick action by both houses of congress in placing their judgment above that of President Roosevelt is the indication thus given that administrative handling of domestic affairs has been unsatisfactory to the people of this country and that, in lieu of continued fumbling and political maneuvering, congress prefers to take upon itself the responsibility for making decisions in vital matters.

This attitude will remove from President Roosevelt none of his authority as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces. It will go no further than to curb his authority to make a further muddle of internal affairs.

Rioters To Undergo Mental Tests

PSYCHIATRISTS in Detroit have been delegated the task of making mental tests on approximately 1,000 rioters held by the police as participants in the outbreak of racial warfare in that city early this week.

From these tests, it is believed, "a pattern of behavior may emerge that will be of great benefit in preventing similar racial disturbances in the future."

While no effort to attain betterment in community or national conditions should be discouraged, it may be wondered just what can be done about it when the learned psychiatrists have made their examinations and confirmed, by scientific tests, what they already know—that participants in the disorders are of low mental type, lacking in education and overrunning with prejudice and intolerance.

After all of these findings have been made a matter of record, the big question will remain: "What's to be done about it?"

Every large and small city has its potential menaces—recognized as such—who are permitted to enjoy freedom and absence of surveillance in spite of the fact that they are known to be dangerous persons.

In Cleveland this week a confessed pervert was convicted and is under death sentence for assaulting and killing a five-year-old girl. He is the kind of person who, instead of being paroled after being imprisoned for an earlier offense, should have been committed permanently to some institution adapted to such cases.

Casual observation in Detroit reveals that a high percentage of the rioters held by police—white and colored—are border-line cases, and that most of the white boys had been rejected by the army because of mental incompetency.

Yet no steps are taken to lessen the flood of mental deficients who carry parental subnormalities and criminal traits to successive generations. It will be interesting to learn the outcome of the Detroit psychiatric tests—but it would be more interesting to learn how soon, if ever, majority opinion will overcome aggressive minority opposition to the extent of securing legislative action designed to prevent unrestrained propagation of mental defectives.

Bond Buyers Helping Themselves

THE NATION'S war bill for this year is reckoned at $106,000,000,000. And all those ciphers suggest a lot of empty pockets. But don't give up and go right out spending your last pay, with the idea that there's no use trying to save anything.

The government can't save money in these times, but individuals can. All those billions that Uncle Sam borrows and spends are owed, directly or indirectly, to people. Wise ones who lend the government money they don't need now are helping win the war and at the same time helping themselves. They have the best security there is, and their savings draw interest. Regular buyers of war bonds will be ahead when the war is over, and much better off than the spendthrifts.

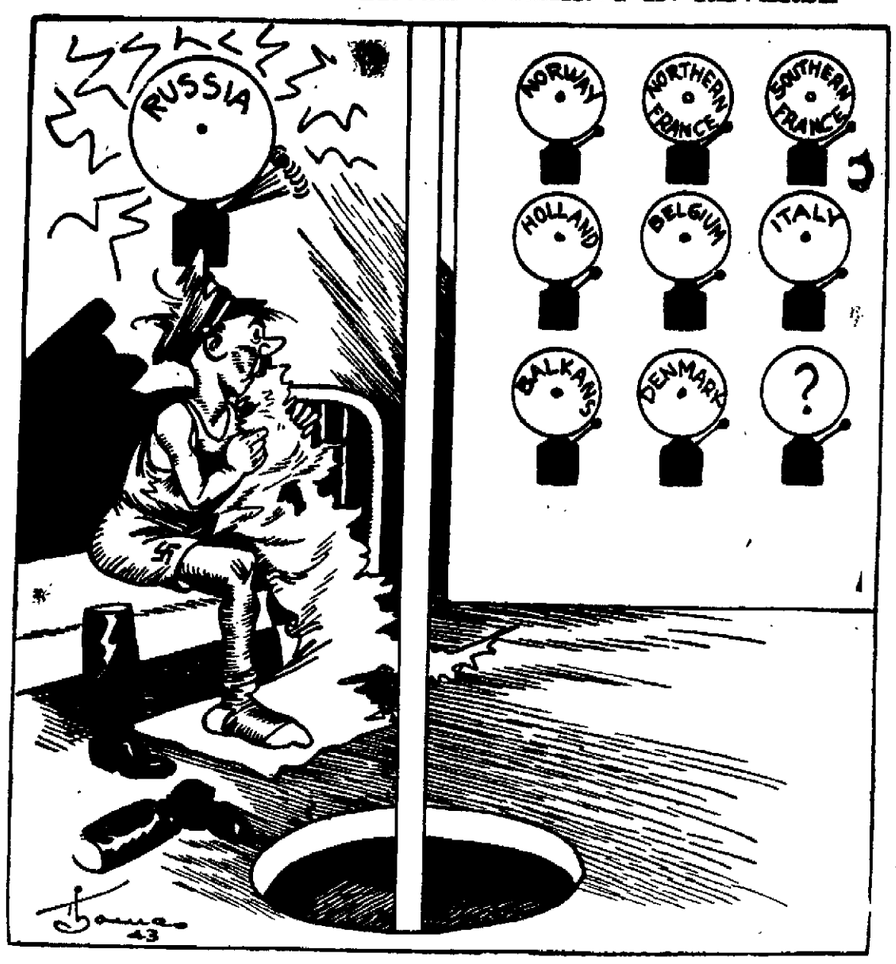
Has Hitler Forgotten Warsaw?

WHEN Hitler received a group of foreign correspondents at the Warsaw airport in 1939 he said: "Gentlemen, you have seen the ruins of Warsaw. Let that be a warning to those statesmen in London and Paris who still think of continuing this war."

Now the shoe is on the other foot, and the Nazis complain of the barbarity of bombing German cities.

Baseball fans can't understand why, after three strikes, John L. Lewis isn't out.

THE WAR OF NERVES WORKING IN REVERSE



Better Air Patrol Hampers Subs

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — There are some excellent secret devices for the destruction of submarines, but far more important than all of them put together has been the increase in strength in aircraft and escort vessels. These, and especially the planes, have "kept them down." If submarines can be kept below the surface their efficiency for attack on convoys is cut, it has been discovered, way out of proportion to anything that had been hoped.

There is nothing secret about this, but the idea is not generally understood except among submarine men. Its importance is applicable chiefly not to lone raiders among the submarines, but to the new "wolf pack" tactic by the Germans, which at first was so successful, and from which so much was hoped by the Nazi admirals.

Obviously, the wolf pack is intended to attack a convoy. What it does is to follow the convoy, out of sight, during the day. Then using their superior surface speed, the subs close with the convoy and hope to fire a fan of torpedoes at it. When such a fan is fired, it is almost impossible for all of the ships of the convoy to escape, even if the aim was not too expert.

THE WOLF PACK had the advantage also of needing but one really good submarine captain. All the subs, aiming at a spot where they expect the convoy ships to be at the moment the torpedoes would reach there, would fire at the command of the experienced captain. At once a fan of torpedoes would start, and the judgment of the directing captain would have to be very bad indeed for all of them to miss.

But—for the wolf pack to be at the right spot with relation to the convoy at the right moment requires an operation of skill and speed—ON THE SURFACE.

The convoy is not able to move rapidly, being held down to the speed of the slowest ship. But there is no convoy being sent abroad which does not move through the water more rapidly than a pack of submarines can while UNDER water.

This did not bother the subs when there was no airplane escort. And airplane escort without carriers is impossible in the Mid-Atlantic. There is a wide stretch there beyond the reach of ordinary land-based patrols.

But with the increase in the number of small aircraft carriers to accompany convoys, the patrol is constant. A few planes only are needed. They may drop depth charges if they sight a sub, but far more dangerous to that sub, they wireless for escort vessels.

NOW in most cases the subs may sight the plane and submerge before either the plane can bomb them, or the destroyers or corvettes arrive. But meanwhile the sub is down under. It can only make a trifle over six knots. As soon as the destroyers get close it cannot do even that, for to run its propeller would be fatal. It would disclose its exact position to the attacking craft.

Meanwhile the convoy is proceeding at a minimum of eight knots, gaining a lead which will make catching up again for a real wolf pack attack during the coming night impossible.

It is this keeping them under, far more than the secret devices, which has resulted in such sharply reduced sinkings beginning in May.

Listen World! By ELSIE ROBINSON

If The Light Goes Out

YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN! Perhaps that's a new idea to you—and a startling one. Yet it is true. Actually, literally, you have never seen a single object in this amazing world . . . neither moss-covered rock nor foam-spangled wave nor face of the one you love.

OF ALL THE SHINING WONDER, YOU HAVE SEEN ONLY A REFLECTED IMAGE WITHIN YOUR OWN BRAIN. And even that is a blurred, distorted reflection if your eyes are imperfect.

Startling, isn't it? But there's a still more disconcerting fact. Even though the mechanism of your eyes be perfect . . . even though it records every slightest detail of the thing before you . . . still, at the best, you are partially blind, catching only a fragment of the full reality. For "sight" isn't only a matter of optic nerves—it involves also the mind.

AND UNLESS YOU "SEE" WITH YOUR EMOTIONS AND YOUR IMAGINATION, AS WELL AS WITH YOUR EYES, YOU WILL GO GROPING ALL YOUR DAYS.

Rafael Sabatini, historical novelist, has a phrase for it, speaking of Gregory Orloff, that magnificent but doltish male, who caught the Empress Catherine's light fancy, he said:

"HE SAW WHAT HE SAW BUT NEVER WHAT IT MEANT."

Chew that phrase carefully, for it applies as well to you and me as to the dim-witted Orloff. And it exposes, with brutal brevity, the cause of much of our mortal misery.

Why does life, which was such a dancing delight at 10, go so suddenly drab at 30? Why does our eagerness change to indifference . . . our courage crumble beneath a growing sense of futility and failure? What demon mocks and cheats us . . . giving us such keen capacity for enjoyment, then snatching away the bright adventure before it can come true . . . leaving us the long drawn horror of "growing old"?

There is no demon. We have not been cheated. No secret blight has spoiled existence for us . . . drained life of its color and drama . . . robbed us of adventure. The adventure still calls . . . the color still blazes outside each small dark cell. And life may be as full and rich, as filled with tingling eagerness, at sixteen as it was at six—IF WE WILL HAVE IT SO.

FOR WE OURSELVES ARE TO BLAME IF THE LIGHT GOES OUT.

Life was lovely and mysterious, exciting and adventurous at sixteen, for you were looking for these qualities in it. Your heart and mind, as well as your fresh young eyes, were open to beauty and romance and gallant ventures.

You saw not only the outside of things, which may soon become monotonous, but also the ever changing, ever-fascinating and exciting INSIDE of things.

BECAUSE YOU WERE ALWAYS EXPECTING SURPRISES THE SURPRISES WERE ALWAYS THERE.

And that fresh delight might be with you now—IF YOU WOULD STILL EXPECT IT. Life was never meant to grow drab and desperate. Even the homeless and penniless wanderers remain quick and curious, alert and alive, to the end of the trail. So it was intended. So it might be, if we did not allow our vision to become so clouded by laziness and greed, prejudice, selfishness, convention and conceit, that at last we see only the stale substance of things—but never their throbbing heart.

Stop being bored. Stop being sorry for yourself because "nothing ever happens" to you. Let things happen! You weren't meant to be a mummy.

Open your heart and—Look!

Open your imagination and—Expect!

Open your mind and—Search! Life is still there—waiting!

GET BUSY! GO GET IT, YOU DOPE!

TODAY IN HISTORY

America's most famous boardwalk, that at Atlantic City, N. J. was opened on June 26, 1870. Today this sea-front promenade resounds to the feet of thousands of men of the U. S. army who are receiving training in that city.

Dave Boone Says:

I SUPPOSE that if President Roosevelt's plan to induct into the army all coal miners or other workers who block the war effort goes through John Lewis will demand portal-to-portal pay during the physical at the induction center.

* * *

It would be fun seeing John at an induction camp having to deal with one of those typical army top sergeants who meant what he said and had no interest in votes.

* * *

There wouldn't be any months of palavering, compromising, dodging and rag chewing. No tons of correspondence, no miles of newspaper space and no national anxieties. Just one simple sentence in a tough, firm voice: "Stow that hack talk, dogface. Just grab a shovel and do what I say or else."

* * *

Of course, you couldn't make John work then any more than you can make him work now, and that's the weak spot in the president's proposal to put into noncombatant service strikers who defy their government.

* * *

Well, I see where Mrs. Roosevelt stepped into a play and substituted for Myrna Loy. That's a bright spot for all folks over forty in the depressing news of the day. I admire Eleanor for it, and she can play Myrna better than Myrna can play Mrs. Roosevelt. Myrna may be a mere kid but Mrs. Roosevelt would have her on the ropes in no time in the matter of pep, endurance and performance.

Timely Editorial

Sound Stand.

The regional war labor board at Cleveland is on firm ground, we believe, in declaring its policy to be to refuse to consider the new 20 per cent withholding tax as a basis for wage increases.

In the first place, the tax is no higher than it formerly was—it simply will be paid sooner. In the second place, all of us who have incomes have an obligation to share in paying the cost of the war. Increasing wages in order to offset higher taxes would not help.

We hope that the war labor board, in the near future, will make it equally plain as a nation-wide policy that wages will not be boosted for the purpose of offsetting the nick that the new tax puts in the pay envelope.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Race Warfare Flares In Detroit; Miners Protest Action By Lewis

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AMERICA is permanently on the brink of revolution. It will be a simple matter for me to produce unrest and revolts in the United States . . ."

Countless Americans recalled this pre-war boast of Adolf Hitler as the home front underwent its most disruptive week.

In Detroit a Sunday-evening fist-fight near a bathing beach touched off a race riot which for 24 hours raged through parts of the war-swollen city. Negroes were pursued, beaten, murdered by mobs of men and youths. Scores were pulled from streetcars and buses in the business section, while in "Paradise Alley," heart of the colored district, pitched battles occurred.

Not since July 2, 1917, when a similar outbreak took the lives of 33 persons in East St. Louis, Ill., had America known such racist savagery.

Michigan's chief executive Harry Kelly flew from a governor's convention in Columbus, Ohio, to decree a state of emergency. Canadian soldiers were ordered off trains bound across the U. S. border to Detroit. Finally, after President Roosevelt had issued a proclamation and U. S. troops had moved in, peace was gradually restored. The toll: some 26 Negroes and three whites killed, 700 injured 1,300 under arrest. Detroit, greatest arsenal of the United Nations, suffered heavy absenteeism during the trouble.

The Detroit outbreak only climaxed a wave of racial unrest which had been sweeping crowded war centers, North and South. At Los Angeles, Mobile and Beaumont, Texas, lesser outbreaks recently occurred. War-tension, crowding and uprooting due to the war were generally blamed.

At Home

Coal Strike Waxes, Wanes.

For two days coal miners stayed away from the mines on orders of John L. Lewis. War production was being slowed due to the third strike of 521,000 miners since May 1, when suddenly on Tuesday night Lewis ordered his United Mine Workers back to work until October 31. Until then, he indicated, they would resort to the courts in the portal-to-portal pay dispute. The strike ended soon after the War Labor Board had referred the strike to President Roosevelt, demanding the use of "all the power of the government."

East vs. West.

While eastern motorists fumed over the no-pleasure-driving ban and demands grew that it be applied to other sections of the country, a new sectional division arose over food.

At the 35th annual governors' convention, in Columbus, O., New York's Thomas E. Dewey tossed a bombshell. Let midwest farmers, he proposed, kill their pigs to eat and divert their grain to the cows and chickens of New York state. He blamed midwestern farm practices for a threatened New York food shortage, warned of milk rationing in the East unless other sections change their ways.

Resentful of the imputation, midwestern governors commented: "He really must not be a candidate for president."

Meanwhile the nation's cattle-raisers held their animals back from the market because of the confused price situation while New York and Chicago entered their most serious meat famine.

Booming Business.

Manufacturing and transportation industries, closely allied to the war effort, showed the highest increase in profits during the first quarter of 1943, the commerce department estimated during the week.

For industry as a whole corporate profits, after taxes, totalled $1,821,000,000—about 18 per cent above the same period last year.

Reported the survey: "The automobile group led the general increase in manufacturing profits, before taxes, with a 41 per cent gain over the first quarter of last year. This sharp rise, of course, was based on an unusually low figure for the first quarter of 1942, when conversion to war production was underway."

Sabotage Plot.

During World War I, the Russian army was hamstrung by sabotage committed by German agents in the United States. Shells that wouldn't go off were sent overseas before we entered the war; in Russia cases of good ammunition were mislabelled so that they would not reach the right guns.

During the week FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover announced the arrest of seven workers in a Spencerport, N. Y., fireworks factory for allegedly making "dud" grenades for the U. S. army.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The war is writing the passing of the old dinner pail -- full or otherwise.

Never again will any politician be able to revive that old campaign war cry, "The full dinner pail." And since you can hardly make political capital out of such slogans as "bigger and better cafeterias," or "a thicker box lunch for every working man," it probably marks the beginning of a new area.

Over in the War Foods Administration is the Nutrition in Industry Division. Headed by Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, its main objective is to see that the war worker is as well fed as the soldier in the field.

THIS is done by "in-plant" feeding, although that name is a little confusing because the system also permits feeding workers at nearby government-supervised restaurants, cafeterias, lunch counters and box-lunch distribution centers. Actually within the plants, there are now three forms of getting food to employes, cafeterias, portable or stationary lunch counters and the box lunch system.

In spite of the spiralling growth of war plants in this country, more than 40 per cent of those employing more than 250 persons (and probably thousands of lesser ones) now have in-plant, government supervised feeding.

WFA and OPA profess to be disappointed that there aren't more. They would like to see this country match England where 96 per cent of the "more-than-250" plants have done away with the dinner pail, not to mention 7,500 smaller factories.

If you wonder why all this to-do about "in-plant" feeding, you can get ready answers from Doctor Goodhart and OPA.

MANY months ago, the powers that be became aware that industrial employes, working long hours and hard, couldn't maintain any higher efficiency on short rations than fighting soldiers.

Almost hand in hand with expanded food production, rationing and price controls, WFA and OPA started their campaign to see that war workers get more than the ordinary civilian share of food. "In-plant" feeding was the answer. Cheap, nutritious lunches and breakfasts, with, in some instances, mid-shift snacks of fruit or vegetable juices, milk and sandwiches—and not a crumb or drop of it requiring extra ration points and all of it at prices glued to the floor.

In some cases, the results have been phenomenal. In one big Evansville, Ind., plant, 85 per cent of the employes now use the "Victory lunch" exclusively — and absenteeism, from this stimulus alone, is estimated to have dropped 19 per cent.

Some industrialists are so delighted with the results that they testify that some peace they'll never let the dinner pail come back, even if they have to set up free-lunch counters and take it out of the stockholders' pockets.

Spartan Pattern

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

I must be brave, my son, for you,
Who strangely as it seems
Are soldier now, a new career
Not planned for in our dreams.

Of your achievement. Strange it is
But true, a soldier, you
Go out to far-flung battlefields
And war's decrees pursue.

A stoic I must be nor show
My misery and fears
I must be brave now as you go,
No grief, no signs, no tears.

I must smile on you as you leave,
Be spartan as we part,
Perhaps forever, still, be still,
Oh, weak, rebellious heart.

Words of the Wise

A truly American sentiment recognizes the dignity of labor and the fact that honor lies in honest toil.—Grover Cleveland.

Daily Bible Thought

The Lord preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me.—Psalm 116:6.

Quotes

Herbert H. Lehman, foreign relief director: America cannot feed the world alone. Satisfaction of the wants of the millions of suffering men, women and children can be accomplished only by the concerted action of all the nations.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Liberal, London: "I believe that if history records Hitler as having been of any use whatever to the world it will be because he destroyed the distrust which formerly existed between Russia and the rest of the civilized world."

Willing to Oblige.

Out of Stockholm during the week came a story of a groundswell of hope in Italy—not hope for an Axis victory, but for quick action by the Allies that will hasten the end of Il Duce's war.

Recent visitors to Italy described the people as broken in spirit, sapped of war discipline, pathetically hunting safety from Allied aerial attacks. They feel, these informants said, that a decisive blow by the Allies would take Italy out of the war beyond all question, even though she is, for practical purposes, out of it now.

The week's developments hinted that the Allies are anxious to oblige. Bombers raked the boot from toe to knee, smashing at production centers and in this, they accomplished a dual mission. They knocked some of the plants out of production; in other cities they scattered the inhabitants to rural centers so effectively that work was stalled.

Biter Packs a Sting.

The ugliest type of vessel the war has produced is the freight ship converted into an aircraft carrier. Barnlike, with high blank sides and none of the mighty grace of an Ark Royal, these hybrid craft have been a-building for some time in U. S. and British yards.

During the week it was revealed what they can do.

M. M. S. Biter, a pocket-size escort carrier, accompanied an Atlantic convoy into a five-day running battle with submarine wolf packs. Biter's planes first sighted the U-boats and attacked them with depth charges and machine guns miles from the convoy itself. The submarines dove, but not soon enough to escape H. M. S. Broadway, an old U. S. destroyer. The Broadway is credited with two kills, another destroyer with two "probables."

Status Quo In Algeria.

At the Casablanca conference last January Fighting French Gen. De Gaulle shook hands with his rival Gen. Giraud. It was a chilly greeting. Two temperaments and two ideologies were in conflict: the lone crusader who had steadfastly stood by his country in defeat versus a suave diplomat-soldier who seeme to have the backing of those who had temporized with collaboration.

Each thought he should control the new French government.

Last month they again shook hands, when De Gaulle flew to Algeria. They meant it that time, but soon differences arose over control of the army.

During the week this crisis was bypassed. A compromise by the French Committee of National Liberation left the two men in charge of their respective armed forces. New recruits may join the one of their choice. Eventually, it is planned, the forces will merge.

In Short

Ruled: By U. S. Supreme Court, that American citizenship of an alien cannot be cancelled because he was once a member of the Communist party.

Revised: By New York State board of regents, the form in which school children shall salute the flag: hand over heart, instead of extended in fascistlike gesture.

Filed: A $38,711.81 federal income tax lien against P. G. Wodehouse, Nazi-held British writer who has broadcast amiably from Berlin.

Damaged: British freighter Coggin by colliding with a dock in Michigan's St. Clair river, a week after sister ship was sunk in a collision near same spot.

Without Escort.

For the first time in the war, American Flying Fortresses flew unescorted into the Ruhr to attack a synthetic rubber plant at Recklinghausen; another formation hit the former General Motors plant at Antwerp. It was the familiar system of pouring it on the factories that turn out the stuff that keeps the Hitler machine running.

A few hours earlier, British heavy bombers had ranged 700 miles to hammer the munitions center of Le Creusot, France, and Friedrichshafen, site of Germany's largest radio-locator factory.

Get Your Man

By VIVIAN BROWN
(AP Features Writer)

Girls—do you want to know how meet men and marry? It's lly very simple. You have to e a one-track mind — about rriage.

That's the advice of Juliet Farn-, author of "How to Meet Men Marry," published by Simon blications, New York.

t makes no difference whether re tall, small, fat or thin; if know your type, there's a for you, says she. He may be around the corner, sitting on r front porch or half way oss the world from you. But, e you understand him, you've ctically got him hooked.

f you are the intelligent type— the stay-at-home male, the smoker and the aloof intel- ual are your "best bets."

ven the casual Romeo, the -romantic type and the man- ut-town can be middle-aisled you've got the right technique d use it.

Only a minority of men who 't Canadian guides" prefer athletic girl, says she. Her field usually has to be an athletic male who would rather chase a golf ball than a skirt. But at least it will give her a chance to exercise her wiles—if she has any.

If it's your surroundings that are all wrong, that's easy. If in the east, go west young gal—to Detroit, Milwaukee, Duluth or Denver. Ruddy mid-westerners are usually attracted to the eastern girl. While the southern lass will go over big in the "Nawth."

Miss Farnham is of the opinion that women spend too much time worrying about men — "Why did he do that" or "What made him say that?"

"Think nothing of it," says she, "if he acts as though silence is platinum and doesn't write much, if he goes vague and doesn't date you when he leaves or if he acts like a dollar-a-word man over the telephone—just keep your mind on one track and develop your technique."

Remember, NO man is going to appear to you on a white charger, girls. . . .

Your're going to have to go out and get him — the way you want him."

Paramount's war romance, "China," which opens today at the Ohio with Alan Ladd, Loretta Young and William Bendix in the leading roles, sets a record for the number of Japanese killed in battle pictures. A column of 4,000 Nipponese troopers is wiped out when Chinese guerillas dynamite the road. "China" was directed by John Farrow, who also directed "Wake Island" and "The Commandos Strike at Dawn." Ladd, it is reported, turns in the best performance of his career. He and his pal. Bendix, start a two-man war on the Nips.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, June 27.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one, with promise of fulfilment of the fondest hopes, wishes, desires and aspirations, in whatever direction such quest for realization may lead. While pleasure, social and affectional matters may flourish, it is an auspicious time for planning large enterprises. Practical and logical thought may assist future action.

Those whose birthday it is may have excellent prospects for putting over their most ambitious plans, aspirations and practical objectives, wherever they may lead, under an expansive, productive and progressive urge to attain major results. Seek co-operation from influential sources, within reasonable bounds.

A child born on this day should be richly endowed with talents, skills, ideas and energies to secure fame, fortune, enhanced personal prestige and popularity, in business and social life. Its affectional and family life should thrive.

For Monday, June 28.

Monday's astrological forecast should be a fortunate one for the surprising or sudden realization of many desired hopes and wishes that might lie in the fields of the unique, novel or exceptional. Well organized strategies supported by sound logic as well as practical constructive ability, might lead to dramatic heights of achievement. Diligence and time win out, but suppress proclivities for trading on personality, glamor or social prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a most propitious time for a surprising and dramatic attainment of their fondest hopes and wishes. This probably in the realm of the practical and substantial, although it may be enhanced by unusual, novel or unique developments. Dare to be original and independent, with proper evaluation of your product or innovation, eliminating the strictly personal or social equation, which are adversely aspected just now.

A child born this day may be original and practical, richly endowed in creative abilities of merit.

About 2,300 U. S. cities with a total population of 1½ million depend on private cars because they have no transit systems and 54,000 communities, lacking railroad facilities, depend on trucks and buses.

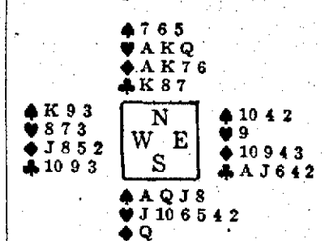
"The Authority on Authorities"

AN ALTERNATIVE PLAN

Don't be too quick to condemn your partner for a play he has made in a difficult situation, when it looks to you as if a different play would have beaten the contract. Perhaps if he made the play which you at first think he should, the declarer would merely have been obliged to play the hand differently, but would have had exactly the same success with the alternative plan.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	3 NT	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	6 ♥

Can you beat that for queer bidding by North? Especially that 1-Spade call? He most properly took out No Trumps after his partner's spade jump. Not sure just what was going on except that North had very little in spades, Miss Dorothy LaFlamme, keen psychologist in the South, properly bid her heart suit again at the four range, and was nearly floored when her partner took it to small slam.

After West led the club 10 and North played low, East was on the spot. Should he signal with the 6 and hold the A over the K? At a lower contract undoubtly, but this was a slam. He finally came in with the A and led the spade 2. Miss LaFlamme refused the finesse, taking the A. Next she cashed the club and diamond queens, scored dummy's three high trumps, and on the diamond A and K the club K discarded her last three spades.

At first West thought the contract would have been set if the club A had not been used on the opening trick, but analysis showed that then the Q would have won, South's other club could have been chucked on a diamond honor, and so could the spade 8. Then the spade J would have been finessed after the hearts were out, and the K would have taken the only trick for the defense.

Then I went on with the case history of the "wilderness woman," up to her present attempts at blackmail, and I feared, the kidnaping of Katharine as well.

Dicky listened quietly until I had finished my story, although his face mirrored the anger and disgust he felt. When I had concluded with the words: "And now you know everything," he sprang to his feet and began to pace up and down the room.

A Bad Combination.

If he meant to elaborate on his theme, my father's knock and entrance stopped him. We pushed forward a chair, and my father dropped heavily into it, showing the fatigue which any unusual exertion or worry brings to him in these later years, though he drives himself as though he were 30 years younger.

"Don't you want to rest a bit before you tell us about it, dad?" Dicky ventured solicitously, but my father brushed the suggestion aside. "I'm not tired," he said stoutly, "and I might as well tell these things to you now at any other time."

He paused, but neither of us said a word, and after another two seconds he said abruptly:

"One thing is certain. As far as is humanly possible, Olina's safety and yours tomorrow morning are assured."

CHAPTER IX

Cadet John Parker sat at the writing table in a room in the Hotel Chelsea. The only light came from the little green-shaded lamp that stood upon the table, but it brought out in full the changing expression on his mobile young face as he strove to set down on paper the thoughts which surged in his brain and the emotions which welled in his heart. He finished another page and read it, frowning. He crumpled it in his hand and cast it to the floor, where it lay among a dozen pages similarly discarded.

"Br-r-i-i-n-g-g!" He stared violently at the sound and then picked up the phone. "Hello? No, Mr. Rossi's not here just now. Oh, good evening, Captain Elder—this is Parker speaking. Yes, sir? Yes, sir? Oh, gee, that's great, sir! That's . . . wonderful! At the North River Ferry? Okay, sir—we'll be there on the dot! You bet, sir! Good night, Captain!"

For a moment he stood smiling thoughtfully in the semi-darkness; then he lifted the receiver and said,

"I want to put in a call to Glorietta, Kansas. The number is two-eight-seven and I wish to speak to Miss Mary Pollard. No, two-eight-seven . . . Yes, that's right."

He moved to the window and, hands in his pockets, stood looking out upon the city and the world . . . But suddenly he stiffened and shook his head. "No!" he said, savagely. "No! I—I can't ask her, yet! What the hell have I ever done? What the hell do I amount to?"

He strode to the phone and snatched it up. "Cancel that Kansas call, will you? Yes—cancel it, please!" He moved slowly back to the window and looked out again upon the city—and the world.

"Got . . . any . . . iodine . . . John?" Cadet Parker wheeled. There in the doorway, swaying slightly and scowling down at his skinned kunckles, stood Mr. Rossi. "Who knows?" murmured Rossi, as though thinking aloud, "Who knows? The son of a gun may have been posionous!"

"Here—come over to the light and I'll fix you up!" said Parker. "But say, listen, Joe! Get this! The skipper phoned a few minutes ago and said he's got us a brand new ship! We're to meet him at North River Ferry at 9 o'clock in the morning!"

"Good!" Mr. Rossi nodded solemnly. "It's . . . damn . . . near . . . time . . . we . . . did . . . something . . . about . . . this . . . war!"

"Her name is the Merchant Mariner," Captain Elder was saying, as their taxicab sped along the highway which crosses the Hackensack Meadows. "She's a brand new C-2—one of those six-thousand horsepower steam turbine jobs. The superintendent swears she's a honey! She's passed all her trials and had her shake-down run, and now they've got her back in the yards for a final check-up. Well, I must say it'll be a pleasant change to have a new ship, after the—the . . . Say, Joe Rossi! Wake up! Wake up! And—and what've you been doing with those knuckles of yours, hey?"

Mr. Rossi, who had a hang-over, looked down at his lacerated hand, sighed, and closed his eyes again.

"Oh, now, Joe!" the captain chided him, severely. "Really, you know, you ought to be ashamed of yourself, always giving way to your nasty temper and going around socking people! H'mff! F'ff! Fine way for a Merchant Marine officer to behave! Fine example to set before serious young chaps like Johnny Parker, here!"

Mr. Rossi moved his tongue around in his mouth and grimaced. Obviously, he tasted unpleasant to himself. "I've got a headache!" he croaked.

"M'mff! Enjoy it, then!" said Captain Elder, relapsing huffily into his corner. But presently he saw on the border of the marshlands ahead of them a dark mass which loomed like a city. Over it hung a dense pall of smoke. Then the mass resolved itself into a forest of derricks and gantries; of rows of gaunt steel skeletons; of massive, plated hulls; of proud and mighty ships . . .

"God!" said Elder, reverently. "Look at that! Look at it! Just—just look at it!"

Cadet Parker looked. His blue eyes opened wide and his jaw set. "It—it kind of makes you feel proud!" he said quietly.

Mr. Rossi looked. His dark eyes narrowed and his skinned fist clenched. "There's where we'll lick 'em!" he whispered, fiercely.

As they neared the yards, Captain Elder leaned forward and rapped on the window. "Stop at Gate Number Three," he ordered the driver. "Pull up by the sentry while I show him our pass."

As they drove through the yards, they gazed in wonder at the row of great vessels which flanked their path, and at the swift, purposeful, grim and—yes, the irresistible activity in evidence on every hand. They saw steel beams and bundles of plates weighing untold tons travel smoothly past them on electric conveyors—they watched torrents of sparks gush like comets' tails from the welder' torches; they felt the very earth wince and tremble as giant steam-hammers plunged down upon reluctantly-yielding metal. Perhaps never before in the history of the world had such vast resources in men, metal and money been concentrated upon the accomplishment of a single task. Compared to this, the building of the Pyramids was as a child building castles in the sand.

"Look up there!" Captain Elder pointed through the window at a flag-draped platform high on a scaffolding at the bow of a completed hull. "Look at that crowd, and the band and all! Say, we're just in time for a launching! Pull up, driver—we've got to get out and watch this!"

They moved under the forest-like scaffolding where, in the criss-cross pattern of light and shadow, a gang of workers was impatiently awaiting the signal to send the ship sliding down the ways. From the platform above, the voice of an unseen orator came to them in a flood of eloquence—eloquence so distorted by a Corn Belt accent, an electric amplifier and the resounding acoustics of the hollow steel hull that only here and there could the words be distinguished.

"Aw, nuts—don't bother!" one of the workers shouted upwards.

"Yair, button up, Senator!" urged another. "We gotta get the next ship started!"

The foreman of the gang looked at his watch. "Twelve seconds until ten o'clock," he announced, calmly. "Eleven seconds . . . Ten seconds . . . Nine seconds . . . Eight seconds . . ."

"Ten o'clock!" cried the foreman. "LET 'ER GO!" His arm swept upwards in a commanding gesture. There was an explosive thud, the resounding crash of falling struts and timbers . . . The ship trembled; then slowly, then faster, faster, she moved, she slid, she roared down the pathway toward her element, clouds of white smoke billowing from under her keel. She struck the water with a mighty splash, swam out upon it gracefully as a duck and then came to rest, swaying gently.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Watch Out for Wireworms In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released By Central Press Ass'n.

WIREWORMS are a menace to the lawn, flower garden, Victory vegetable garden and especially to corn plantings. They are often found in abundance in light soils. Plants attacked by wireworms soon begin to look sickly and when they are dug up it will be found that the worms have eaten practically all the roots.

The illustration of a wireworm feeding on the tender roots of a plant in the accompanying Garden-Graph shows the worm about twice the size it actually is in real life. The wireworm usually is about one and one-half inches long, slim and either orange-brown or yellow in color. As these worms live to the ripe old age of five or six years they provide a perennial problem for the gardener.

The wireworm is the larva of the click beetle, also illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The picture shows the beetle about four times its actual size. Many people call this pest the snapping beetle and still another name for them is "skipjacks."

One effective way of ridding the Victory garden of wireworms is to trap them by appealing to their greediness. Place one-inch square pieces of carrot two inches deep in the soil, and a foot apart. Have the pieces of carrot pitted with a small stick so they can easily be pulled up. The wireworms which will be found clinging to the pieces of carrot can then be dropped into a can and afterwards destroyed.

MANSFIEL DBUSINESS IN REVIEW

Problems of Personal Finance Solved By Mansfield Provident

Local Company Serves Vital Community Need.

The Mansfield Provident company was founded during World War I to serve the personal loan needs of this community. Today, 27 years later, the organization is continuing to play a vital part in the economic life of the community.

During these many years the company has witnessed many changes in business and the personal life of the city but has always kept abreast of the hour and has adapted its policies to current and future needs.

The Mansfield Provident company has constantly adhered to certain fundamental business truths and firmly believes that "confidence is the cornerstone of good business."

H. E. Amsbaugh, general manager of the local branch of the company located at 18 West Third street, points out that personal loans to individuals for worthwhile purposes is strictly and exclusively the business of the Mansfield Provident company.

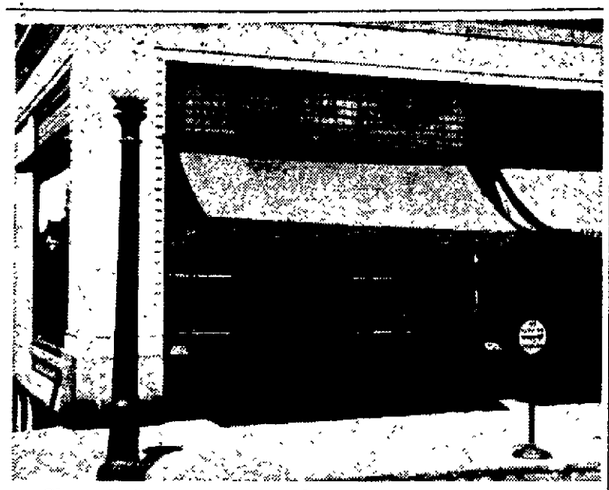
Continuing, he says, "We firmly believe that personal economic stability is vital to the national welfare and we are devoted to the task of assisting our clients in aligning their personal budgets and providing the solution to their financial worries."

War Bond purchases to the limit are being encouraged in this all-out war effort. The company is proud, too, of its five members now in the armed forces.

A few of the current reasons for personal borrowing as outlined by Amsbaugh are "debt consolidation, hospitalization and medical needs, civilian morale improvement and consumer goods purchases."

For many years the organization has made grants to employed women and now with more women engaged in industry, this policy is even more popular than before.

Branch offices in Ashland and Shelby are maintained to assist with similar problems of personal finance in those localities.



Shown in the accompanying photo are the offices of the local—branch of the Mansfield Provident Loan company located at 18 West Third street.

OPA QUERIES LAUNDRYMEN, FEARS REPLIES IN CHINESE

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — The Office of Price Administration has begun asking for information from Chinese laundrymen in the metropolitan area and is not quite sure what it is up against, it was learned at the New York regional office.

As a first step the OPA asked the Chinese Benevolent Association to translate into Chinese the questions contained on its standard form. The questions in both English and Chinese were sent out, along with 3,500 untranslated questionnaires for English-speaking laundries.

The OPA neglected to state on the questionnaire that the answers should be provided in English characters, assuming that the laundrymen would answer in English as a matter of course. The OPA has no Chinese translators of its own, and if the 55,000 forms come back with Chinese answers the Chinese Benevolent Association will have to be called on again for aid.

"And I don't suppose they will like that," commented an OPA official. The information requested must be supplied every two months.

Besides asking for the name and address of each laundry, the form asks twenty-six questions about average weekly business, number of owners, partners, and employes; total earnings and wages; average weekly bill from laundry or wet-wash wholesalers, and the retail prices of twenty items commonly found in the wash.

These questions are to be answered simply by setting down numerals, but many Chinese laundrymen keep their accounts in Chinese characters, do their arithmetic with an abacus and can express only small sums in English numerals.

The OPA did not say why it wanted the information.

The oldest known standard of length, the cubit, was the distance between a man's elbow and the tip of his middle finger.

CARE TO KEEP CARS ON ROAD FOR DURATION

Weekley Mechanics Give Service Plus Information on How To Keep 'Em Rolling.

Essential driving is the only kind patriotic Americans are doing these days. So that the cars that are on the road deserve the best of care. In fact, inteligent driving and methodical care are being highlighted in automobile news as necessary to the preservation of your car.

The Roos Weekley Garage, 46 West Temple Court, is dedicated to the task of making your car last longer by the simple formula of giving it expert service. Employes are the men in uniform on the Home Front who have enlisted in the all-out effort to prevent present or future car trouble that can be avoided by intelligent care.

Not only do you get expert lubrication, laundry and simonizing service at Weekley's, but coureteous mechanics are instructed to pass along any tested information that will keep your car on the road longer.

The central location of the Ross Weekley Garage is also an important consideration in these hurried times. Located just a step from Fourth street on Temple Court, cars may conveniently be left before work in the morning and called for on the way home in the late afternoon. Meanwhile they will be serviced and safely parked in a cool connecting garage. Or, if the owner prefers, Weekley's will call for and deliver the car . . . giving it expert care meanwhile.

All cars are washed at Weekley's by the Hardie high pressure system. Weekley states that cars should be washed whether they are dirty or not for the reason that calcium chloride picked up on the street adheres to the bottom of the car and causes damaging rust. These deposits are blown off by 400 pounds of air and water pressure . . . a special phase of the laundry service at Weekley's.

Simonizing and careful polishing is another special Weekley service. This includes a systematic cleaning of the car both inside and out. It preserves the finish and prevents deterioration.

Drive in to Weekley's any time between 7:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. for a checkup. They're in business to co-operate with you in keeping your car on the road.

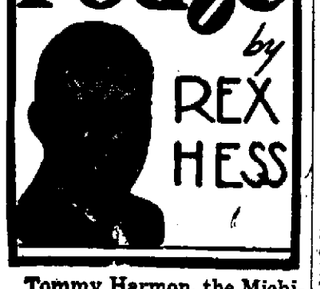
Sport Podge

by REX HESS



Tommy Harmon, the Michigan grid great, who played his first professional game of basketball on the Mansfield high school gym floor, credited his "football legs" for pulling him through on the long trek in the South American swamps and jungles when his bomber, "Little Butch" crashed.

Bill Snowden, Mansfield high gridder of last season, credits his athletic training for keeping him going in the 115 degree heat at Keesler Field, Mississippi, where some of his Army Air Force buddies are toppling over daily.

This football seems to be a pretty good body building game. But the army won't let its college reserves play.

Here's what Snowden writes:

Dear Rex: I know you used to have a little trouble filling your column and thought I might help some. (Skip helped fill this space more than once before he went away.) I am writing to all my former buddies, and would appreciate any new addresses.

Man, it is hot here, 115 degrees, and we march and exercise in it.

If it weren't for my athletic training, I would never be able to keep from passing out, as a lot of the boys do here.

* * *

I love the air corps, but the state of Mississippi can go sing pang plumb to ———. I would give my month's pay to be in Mansfield.

As Chuck Atton and Bob Hamilton, also here as air cadets, say: "If they give us 30 minutes to catch a train home, we would give nine of them back."

* * *

Thanks for all you did for me and the rest of my teammates, ex.

We didn't achieve much as football players, but I believe it made us better men and soldiers. I hope so, anyway.

Well, keep the folks' morale up home, and take a cold drink Mansfield water for me.

Your friend,
Skip Snowden.

Pvt. A. C. Wm. C. Snowden 15140415, 59 Tr. G-Sq. 594 Class Hut 7, Kessler Field, Miss.

I wouldn't feel too badly about last fall's football season, Skip. The team didn't do so bad, considering a lot of things, including green material, a coach sick in bed with the flu, and some mighty tough opposition.

I prefer to remember the fighting team of the upset victory at Springfield rather than the bewildered eleven that was swamped at Canton. And so, I think, do most of the fans.

And I'm glad you mentioned that water, Bill. In spite of a popular notion to the contrary, it makes a mighty fine drink. And I will gladly down a slug for you.

Here's a little dope about one of your old friends.

Elroy Hoot Lightnin' Jones has been moved out of Fort Hayes and sent to Fort McClellan, Alabama, where he too probably finds the weather a bit warm.

Hoot was in the army reserve at Wilberforce during the past school year, and you'll remember he was forced to take up boxing, and found that he liked it.

But he refused to demonstrate his ring skill for the boys while he acted as a judge at the district track meet here. "Ah don' wantta hit no one," said Hoot, "Ah'm a peacable man." But I know he was glad to leave for the army, as he told me shortly before he left:

* * *

"This town is daid. Nothin' but old men and kids and wimmin." A true word, if ever I heard one.

Bonnie Volo Cops Marion Feature

MARION — (INS) — Art Sherrier of Lafayette, Ind., today was proud of the showing his Bonnie Volo made in last night's headline event of the little grand circuit series which are nearing a close at Marion.

Bonnie Volo, driven by Trainer Pat Hodgins, Shelbyville, Ind., was counted for the 2:17 class pace stake. The rest of the nine heaches of the card except the fifth and eighth races, which were also won by Bonnie Volo were divided by two horses, Glenyce taking the first, fourth and seventh and Victor S the remaining third, fifth and ninth.

The 15-night meeting winds up tonight.

Bad Luck Follows Rookie

Good Pitching Wasted For Yankee Chucker.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THERE are managers and players in the American league who will tell you the outstanding rookie pitcher in the junior circuit this season is Charley Wensloff of the New York Yankees. This may be open to debate, but no one will question his right to be called the unluckiest.

Wensloff, called the "Iron Man" of the Yankees' Kansas City farm last season, has received little of the publicity that has centered on the Athletics' Jesse Flores, the Senators Milo Candini, the Tigers Stubby Overmire and other newcomers.

Yet he has pitched a brand of ball that might well have earned him an undefeated rating instead of his present record of four won and the same number lost.

He has been a starting pitcher for New York ever since Manager Joe McCarthy looked him over in spring training.

But what has happened to him in his nine starts has been terrific. He was beaten by Washington in his first outing 4-1 although he pitched seven-hit ball. His next loss was to Chicago White Sox when Lee (Buck) Ross pitched a one-hitter. His third was to the St. Louis Browns 3-2, with all three St. Louis runs scoring through four Yankee errors in a ten-inning game. His fourth was last Sunday when he had a streak of wildness against Washington and was banished from the game for disputing an umpire's decision on balls and strikes.

But the climax came in a twilight game at Boston last night which resulted in a 2-2 tie in 11 innings after darkness forced a halt.

Wensloff pitched four-hit ball, fanned seven, and might have won except for one of the rarest happenings in major league baseball—a player batted out of turn.

Joe Gordon, the stellar second baseman, who has been doing everything wrong ever since the last world series, batted in the wrong place in first turn at the plate, but no scoring was involved and if the Red Sox noticed they said nothing. But on his second turn he slammed a drive against the fence that brought a tally home.

Then Manager Joe Cronin of the Sox rushed out to the umpire and pointed out that Gordon had hit out of turn, nullifying the run. Gordon made an attempt to redeem himself by hitting his seventh home run of the season to tie the score in the ninth, but it turned out to be just another victory Wensloff should have had and missed.

The Senators gave ground to the Yankees, however, by dropping a 5-2 decision to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Cleveland beat Chicago White Sox 6-2 and the St. Louis Brown's bumped the Detroit Tigers 6-3.

* * *

In the National league both the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers were beaten. The world champions and present National league leaders were shutout 6-0 by the Chicago Cubs and the Dodgers were waylaid by the Philadelhphia Phillies, 8-2.

The Boston Braves beat the New York Giants 5-3.

The Pittsburgh-Cincinnati game was postponed.

Race Retains Status Quo

AA Leaders Win And Lose at Same Time.

(By Associated Press)

If Milwaukee could win when Indianapolis was losing, the American Association pennant race wouldn't be so top heavy in favor of the Indians.

The Brewers went through a 10-game winning streak only to find themselves as far out of the lead as ever. Last night the Kansas City Blues knocked over Milwaukee for the second straight time while last-place Louisville was beating Indianapolis. Thus, the Tribe maintained its three-game lead.

* * *

The Colonels launched a 12-hit attack, including four doubles and a triple to bounce Indianapolis 5 to 4.

Tommy Reis struck out 10 batters and rationed seven hits to give Kansas City a 4-3 decision over the Brewers.

It took Columbus 12 innings to nab an 8-7 verdict from Toledo. With the bases loaded and two out, Joe Garagiola singled Chet Wieczorek home with the deciding tally. The 17-year-old catcher's timely blow meant defeat for Big Bill Seinsoth who had stolen the show by portsiding the entire route and displaying some terrific hitting.

In the fourth one-run victory of the night, Minneapolis edged out St. Paul 3 to 2.

Beau Jack threatened Al Singer's record as the briefest boxing titleholder. Singer won the lightweight crown in July, 1930, and was kayoed in November. Jack won in December and lost in May to Bob Montgomery.

Something a bit more spectacular in baseball shots comes out of a Detroit cameraman's box as Ned Harris of the Tigers scoots gracefully on to second base after a wild throw to first had pulled Mickey Rocco of the Indians off the bag.

War Changes Tommy Farr

Prize Ring Heel Now Champ Entertainer.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The incredulous inhabitants of Punch Promenade gave credit to the war for the reported transformation of Heavyweight Tommy Farr from "heel" to "swell fellow."

Farr returned from New York to his native British isles in 1939 after losing five consecutive bouts in the United States. His departure was punctuated with Bronx cheers along Jacobs beach, because the Welsh scrapper had become thoroughly disliked by nearly everyone connected closely with boxing in America.

In the argot of cauliflower canyon, Farr seemed to be a "heel"—a "wrongo." Despite the ruggedness and gameness he displayed against Louis, Braddock, Max Baer, Nova and Burman, he was regarded as an egotistical braggart and an undependable tight-wad.

Hence the surprise at the tributes paid to Farr by Freddy Corcoran, who returned recently from war work in the British Isles.

"Who is this guy Corcoran?"—the guys around Stillman's gym wanted to know.

They were told that Corcoran recently was Red Cross club director in the British Isles. They were informed that Freddy Corcoran never gave a sports writer a bum steer.

So the men of the "fancy" had to credit the transformation to the war.

Corcoran reported that Farr was "giving his all" for the entertainment of American and British troops. Farr, who was in the Royal Air Force early in the war but who was ousted because of impaired sight, now operates a hotel and pub at Brighton, Eng. His "jernt" makes money while Tommy is on the scene, personally But Farr leaves his money spot again to entertain the boys.

For example, he made a lengthy tour with Freddy, visiting more than 20 camps. "I merely asked him to come, and he came," said Freddy. "He asked no questions. He's a great fellow. No one has done more for our troops over there than Farr. The boys love him."

It seems that the war has humanized—has mellowed the self-centered bully-boy from Tonypandy, Wales. Far different was the scarified, cauliflowered, sandy-haired toughie whom we met on the boat when he first came to the United States in 1937 to fight Joe Louis.

Farr, who had changed managers and rubbed everyone the wrong way during the rest of his American campaign as he tried irritatingly to mix penny-pinching and playing the night spots, now is a different guy.

Punch Prado credits the war.

Brewers Boost Stick Average

Four Work Way Into League's Top Ten.

CHICAGO — (AP) — On the crest of Milwaukee's winning surge last week, four Brewer batters worked their way into the "top ten" ranking of the American Association, with Grey Clarke leading the uplift by belting out 11 hits in 25 times at bat to move into a tie with his teammate, Hershel Martin, for the leadership.

* * *

Clarke, in third place a week ago, hiked his average from .362 to .372 in statistics computed through Wednesday's games. He also topped the league in number of hits, 70, runs-batted-in, 42, and his five triples put him in a tie in that specialty with Steve Barath of Louisville and Ed Morgan of Indianapolis.

Martin, holder of the best batting average all season, found himself pressed after connecting only five times in 17 appearances which lowered his mark from .385 to .372.

This pair of campaigners was followed by Alan Zarilla of Toledo, with .351; Howard Schultz, St. Paul, .323; Gil English, Indianapolis, .321; Phil Weintraub, Toledo, .315; Don Johnson, Milwaukee, .305; Joe Moore, Indianapolis, .304; Bill Norman, Milwaukee, .301, and Allen Hunt, St. Paul, .290.

The leaders were determined on the basis of 120 or more times at bat.

In other specialty brackets Hunt led in two base hits with 13; Norman, the Association's home run king of 1942, was home run leader with 9, and Frank Danneker of Minneapolis had stolen nine bases to top that department.

Milwaukee was ahead in team batting with a mark of .294, followed by Toledo's .270 and Indianapolis' .260. Columbus led in team fielding with .975, followed by St. Paul, Minneapolis and Louisville, each with .974.

The best pitching record belonged to Bob Logan of Indianapolis, who had won four games without a setback. Jim Trexler, his teammate, had won eight with only one loss. Strikeout honors went to Emmett O'Neill of Louisville, who had 55 to his credit.

Dahlgren Paces Major Leagues

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Babe Dahlgren, Philadelphia Phillies' third baseman, took over the major league batting lead the past week with an average of .356 for 56 games, official averages revealed today.

The National league pace-setter, who boosted his average from .347 during the week, stepped ahead of Vern Stephens of the St. Louis Browns. The St. Louis shortstop meanwhile had a .335 mark to keep the lead in the American league.

The senior circuit also led both in club hitting and fielding. The St. Louis Cardinals ousted the Dodgers in team batting with a .265 mark and the Cincinnati Reds remained at the top of the fielding column with a .982 average. Cleveland's Indians supplanted the New York Yankees in American league club batting with a .254 record and the Chicago White Sox stayed on top with a .978 club fielding average.

East Battles West In Final

Familiar Pattern Seen In Collegiate Tennis.

EVANSTON, Ill. — (U.P.) — The 59th national inter-collegiate tennis tournament adhered to a familiar pattern today as it moved into its final round with Francisco (Pancho) Segura of the University of Miami facing Tom Brown, jr., of the University of California for the singles crown.

The doubles title round pitted Brown and his partner, Harry Buttimer, against John Hickman and Walter Driver of the University of Texas.

Since this collegiate net classic merged from an eastern fostered and dominated meet back in 1920, the far west and the south have monopolized it.

* * *

Of the tournament's 23 renewals, 17 singles championships have gone to representatives from those two sections and in doubles the aggregate is 19 crowns.

The colorful Ecuadorian won his way into the finals by eliminating Earl Cochell of Southern California with ridiculous ease, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0.

Segura's unorthodox but powerful forehand was Cochell's undoing. Pancho dotted the baseline corners with his drives repeatedly and then when Cochell committed himself to deep court play, Segura caught him flat-footed with tantalizing drop shots that would just clear the net.

* * *

Brown had more difficulty in advancing than Segura, but the power of his overhead and ground strokes outweighted the steadiness of evert to give him a 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory.

* * *

While play in the singles ran strictly to form with the finals bringing together the first two seeded performers, the doubles semi-finals brought the tournament's major upset with the elimination of Cochell and his partner, Robert Kimbrell, by Hickman and Driver in a bitterly contested four set match, 6-3, 7-9 6-2, 6-4.

Cochell and Kimbrell were top-seeded and came here fresh from grabbing the national clay court championship at Detroit last week.

Brown and Buttimer outclassed completely Bartlett and Anderson, winning 8-6, 6-2, 6-1.

18-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS GOLF CROWN

CHICAGO— (INS) — The Illinois state women's golf crown today perched firmly on the head of game 18-year-old Marjorie Lindsay from downstate Decatur, who staged a stirring rally to win over Mrs. Fred J. Krauss, Chicago veteran of the Fairways, 2 up, in their 36-hole final match.

Juniors Stage Pattern Play

Two Games Decided By Identical Method.

Play in the junior Parks softball league yesterday followed a pattern.

Prospect exploded two big innings, scoring five runs in the first and two in the sixth, and blanked South Boulevard 7-0.

Brinkerhoff exploded two big innings, scoring three runs in the first and four in the sixth and defeated Maple Lake 7-1.

Hammond of Brinkerhoff chucked a three-hit game, while Madden of Prospect turned in a 5-hit shutout.

Indians Bounce Up Again

Climb Into Tie For Third Thanks to Sox.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The bouncing Cleveland Indians are back in a tie for third place in the American league, thanks to their perennial victims, the Chicago White Sox.

The team that went from first to eighth to third place had slipped to a tie for fourth coming out of a Detroit series, but climbed back last night with a 6 to 2 triumph over the Chisox.

Another game today and a doubleheader Sunday may give the Tribe a better toehold on upper regions of the standings before the eastern crowd moves in for a 15-game stand starting Wednesday.

Lefthanded Al Smith won his fifth victory against two defeats last night. Jake Wade, the loser, lasted one-third of one inning, during which he issued three bases on balls, allowed a hit and committed an error.

* * *

Joe Haynes, who relieved Wade, was more effective, but the Sox were unable to overtake the fleet Indians who scored once more in the fourth and twice more in the seventh.

Cleveland raked up eight hits, with Buddy Rosar the only batter hitting safely twice. Smith also yielded eight hits to Chicago.

The Sox scored first in the second inning on a double by Luke Appling and a single by Joe Kuhel and tallied again in the fifth.

Guy Curtright, rookie leftfielder, singled in the sixth, to make it the 21st game in which he has hit safely.

FORCED REST

CINCINNATI —(AP)— A day of forced idleness wrought no change in the original pitching selections for the opening game of the series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Yesterday's contest was "weathered out" and will be played sometime in September.

On the mound for the Reds will be Johnny Vander Meer who is seeking his seventh triumph of the campaign, while Manager Frankie Frisch is sending the West Virginian, Max Butcher, to the firing line to oppose him.

CINCINNATI— (AP) —Finals of the women's doubles in the tri-state tennis tournament today brings together Pauline Betz, Los Angeles national women's singles champion, her partner, Nancy Corbett of Chicago, against Catherine Wolf of South Bend, Ind., and Jane Wagner of Cincinnati.

COLLECTS FAT

PITTSFIELD, Mass.— (UP) — Eleven-year-old Stephen Parsczyk has collected enough kitchen fats to sink a battleship.

After a collection campaign that lasted four months, the fifth grade pupil turned in 326 pounds of fat to his neighborhood butcher shop.

Besides earning $13.04 for his efforts, Parsczyk's fat will make enough glycerine to sink a battleship, according to salvage officials.

NAZI WHINING GROWS LOUDER

Goebbels Calls U. S., Britain Vandals For Turning Tables In Aerial Warfare.

ture shall become victim of their terror bombers. x x x

"Humanity should blush in shame that, say, a 20-year-old American, Canadian or Australian terror flier can and is allowed to destroy a picture by Duerer or Titian."

The German propaganda line consistently has been the assertion that cultural objects, hospitals and schools were bombed by the Allied fliers, without a mention of the military targets caught under RAF saturation raids and wiped out by precision bombing of the American air forces.

Goebbels now has a new propaganda policy of sending war reporters to the ruined Ruhr to make "horror" broadcasts, a move seen here as an attempt to arouse sympathy in Allied countries and to stir German morale with hate.

The British, who have felt the pain of bombings, were being warned in the press and by its leaders not to fall for the latest trick of Goebbels.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

WILMINGTON— (AP)—Lightning killed Arthur Brownlee, 48, farm hand of Reesville, as he drove a loaded hay wagon in a field last night.

ACCIDENT COSTS U. S. NINTH SUB

Some of Personnel Saved as R-12 Goes Down In Very Deep Water.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Navy officials today are continuing an investigation of the loss of the U. S submarine R-12 off the east coast recently with an undisclosed number of officers and men.

Reporting on the R-12 for the first time last night, the navy disclosed that the sub was engaged in training exercises when she sank, most likely because of an accident.

The navy said that the depth of the water makes it impossible to salvage the submersible and that hope has been abandoned for recovery of the bodies of the missing personnel. Next of kin have been informed.

"Information obtained from survivors indicates that the loss was probably due to accident and not enemy action," the navy said. "An investigation is now in progress to determine the available facts of the case."

Announcement of the incident was withheld until attempts to locate and raise the R-12 were discontinued in order that enemy submarines might not be given information that would enable them to attack the salvage vessel.

The R-12 was the ninth submarine lost to this country since Pearl Harbor.

ANTI-STRIKE BILL PASSED OVER VETO

Congress Reverses President In Whirlwind Action, Miners Angry.

board steadfastly had been ignored by President Lewis of the UMW in its handling of the coal wage controversy.

On one subject there was general agreement — it was the sharpest congressional rebuff handed the president since the supreme court reorganization bill was junked in 1937. It followed by just a week of preliminary house rebellion which saw the administration's price rollback and subsidy program slapped down.

It was the eighth time a Roosevelt veto had been overriden since 1933.

With eagerness that presaged the result, the senate took up the veto five minutes after the president's message was read late in the afternoon. The senators overrode it by a 56 to 25 vote, 29 Democrats joining 27 Republicans to override Mr. Roosevelt; and 19 Democrats, five Republicans and one Progressive voting to uphold the executive. Among those voting to override was Democratic Leader Hill of Alabama.

The senate's action was reported to the house while it was in the middle of a heated debate on an anti-subsidy bill. Cries of "vote" immediately went up.

Delaying tactics by a few members were futile.

With a margin of nine votes, compared with the senate edge of only two (a two-third vote being required in each case), the house overrode the veto as quickly as the roll could be called. Voting against the president were 114 Democrats and 130 Republicans, while 67 Democrats, 37 Republicans and four minor party members upheld them.

In his veto message, the president said he was "unalterably opposed to strikes in wartime," but expressed the view the Connally-Smith-Harness bill contained provisions "which in fact would foment slow-downs [illegible] strikes."

His major objection was directed at a section legalizing strikes in war industries not operated by the government provided a secret ballot of workers was taken and 30 days notice given before a strike was called.

The president said he approved sections of the measure giving him statutory power to seize war facilities, providing for maintenance of existing terms and conditions of employment except as directed by the War Labor Board, levying fines of $5,000 and imposing one-year prison sentences on persons instigating, directing or financing a strike in a government-operated industry, and giving statutory standing to the War Labor Board.

While the criminal provisions might "make possible the arrest of a few leaders who would give bond for their appearance at trial" and might have "some deterrent effect," the president said it would not "assure continuance of war production in the most critical emergencies."

Here's What New Law Provides

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Salient provisions of the anti strike bill passed by congress over President Roosevelt's veto:

Prohibits any strike in a government-held plant, with fines up to $5,000 and imprisonment up to one year for persons instigating or aiding such a work stoppage.

Provides for 30 days notice and a secret ballot by workers before a strike is called in any war plant.

Gives statutory authority and subpoena power to the war labor board (WLB).

Gives specific authority to the president to seize war facilities

Provides for maintenance of existing terms and conditions of employment except as directed by the WLB.

Forbids wartime political contributions by labor organizations.

Back-to-Work Move Gains Among Miners

(By United Press)

The back-to-work movement among the nation's striking coal miners gained momentum today after several days revolt and indications were that operators in bituminous and anthracite mines would be almost back to normal by Monday.

Although there still were more than 200,000 men on strike, additional workers began returning to their jobs after congress overrode President Roosevelt's veto and enacted into law an anti-strike bill providing fines and imprisonment for strike instigators.

The back-to-work trend particularly was noticeable in central Pennsylvania, focal point of a rebellion by nearly 85,000 of the state's 125,000 soft coal miners against the United Mine Workers directive to end the strike. While only 871 of the 45,000 miners in that section worked yesterday, a total of 4200 from 16 locals either returned to work last night or voted to go back Monday.

Union officials, while critical of the anti-strike law, predicted that the congressional action would not hinder the return to work movement and they expected most of the remaining strikers to be back on their jobs by next week.

The situation:

Pennsylvania—About 45,000 of 125,000 bituminous miners and 52,000 of 80,000 anthracite miners in the pits.

West Virginia—Almost all the 130,000 miners on the job.

Ohio—Only 2,500 working. Mass meeting scheduled for today and tomorrow to get 22,500 strikers back to work.

Alabama—7,000 of 22,000 still on strike, but most expected back by Monday.

Tennessee—Only 1,300 of 9,000 still out.

Illinois—18,000 of 23,000 UMW miners working. Virtually all 15,000 Progressive Mine Workers on job.

Override Seen as Blow to 4th Term

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The whirlwind enactment of the anti-strike bill over President Roosevelt's veto today prompted Republican assertions there would be no fourth term and counter contentions that the action should not be considered a reflection on the executive.

Elated at the result of senate and house votes overriding the veto, Senator Wherry (R-Neb) told reporters:

"This is the first concrete evidence that there will be no fourth term."

The president's veto of the measure also provoked sharp criticism from members of his own party, with Senator Byrd (D-Va.) asserting that the action was laden with politics.

On the other hand, Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), who voted to override the veto in the senate said he thought congress' action expressed only a bi-partisan determination to prevent further strikes in war industries such as the coal walkouts.

emergency for the farmers will be within the next ten days to two weeks when hay must be mowed, wheat shocked and corn plowed. There will then be a drop off in the farm work until corn harvest time.

Ganyard suggested that one of the most important reasons for starting the emergency farm labor program to function is to have it in good working order by next spring when the farmers will need even more help with spring planting.

C. L. Beal of the Shelby Credit Bureau, explained to the committees the organization of the Shelby program which is already set up and functioning. Reese Mills chairman of the chamber agricultural committee presented the idea that the farm program be worked out for itself by each community since transportation makes it impractical for factory workers in one part of the county to travel to another part. However, the various communities will co-operate to form a co-ordinated county-wide program, he said.

C'EST LA GUERRE

KINGSTON, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Two soldiers from this city who fought at Guadalcanal were given a great surprise when they arrived home on furlough. At the railroad station they saw an immense crowd gathered and believed they were being given a royal welcome. They found, however, that the crowd was bidding farewell to a departing group of selectees.

2 HELD HERE AS RCAF DESERTERS

Youths Had Been Befriended By Scores, Even Obtained Own Ration Books.

The youths, police said, always explained that they were on a long furlough just before going overseas. They had girl friends in all parts of the city who bought gifts for them, Bates said. One of the girls went to the city jail last night with a $15 arm band as a gift for one of the youths and to plead for their release, the chief added.

"They were both such fine fellows that I can't understand how they could have done anything wrong," the young woman told officers.

Seven or eight blank army passes, which one of the pair confessed stealing from the RCAF post in Toronto, tripped the fliers after two hours of questioning late yesterday and brought a confession from them, Schuck said.

Detectives went to the room where the youths had been staying and found the blanks in their baggage. Confronted with the information, the pair told officers "We give up." Previously they had contended that their passes were legal and they weren't due back in Canada for 10 days.

To obtain food ration books yesterday, the youths told clerks at rationing headquarters that they were on furlough here until June 30 and needed ration points to buy food. The food books were issued.

Bates said the legality of the fliers' entrance into the United States was being investigated since they apparently gained entrance to this country with their army passes which they admitted were forged.

Although they are privates, both youths were wearing sergeants' stripes and RCAF wings which they said they purchased at an army store.

One of the youths told officers he came to Mansfield first on April 15 and the other arrived May 2. They explained that they left their post at Toronto with two other men, all of them going to St. Louis, Mo., where two remained.

Gosselin and Bachand left Mansfield several times to visit other nearby cities and once went to their homes in Canada, detectives learned. They said they bought new army hats on their trip to Canada.

"Those uniforms certainly have been a good meal ticket for you fellows, haven't they?" Detective Schuck asked them last night They laughed and agreed.

NORTH BEND, Ore.—(UP)—Because Delbert Benson is not too sure of himself on point rationing, his friends have plenty of meat.

Benson killed a bear on the Henry Ullman ranch after several sheep disappeared. Ordinarily he would have sold the meat, but he wasn't sure what the ration board would say, so he gave it away.

SENATE KILLS FOOD SUBSIDY; BLOW TO FDR

Upper House Rejects Price Roll-Back at Expense Of Taxpayers.

M. Brown intends to roll back those prices—even though the price cut goes all the way back to farmers if there is no subsidy. So they were not satisfied with the Clark plan.

Sen. George W. Aiken (R., Vt.), a farm bloc member, then proposed a substitute for the Clark proposal and it was approved by a vote of 46 to 29.

Aiken's amendment stipulated that "no maximum price shall be established on agricultural commodities" which would fail to give the producer, in the open market, either full parity or the support price announced by the agriculture department, whichever is the higher.

It would ban any subsidy payments, either directly or indirectly to reduce or roll back such maximum prices without specific congressional authorization.

Aiken's provision, adopted as an amendment to a bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation, was almost identical to an anti-rollback amendment which the house attached to its Commodity Credit extension bill yesterday.

President Roosevelt challenged congress on the food issue yesterday at his press conference when he served notice he would fight it out with congress whether a single food administrator or a subsidy program is the answer to current food problems.

He warned congress that it must accept full responsibility if it allows runaway inflation to develop —if it kills the subsidy-rollback program and decides, over Mr. Roosevelt's strong opposition, to vest production, price and rationing authority on food in one man.

But congress is in no mood for compromise. It displayed its temper yesterday by quickly overriding the president's veto on the anti-strike bill, and it was expected to give further evidence of its displeasure with the handling of home front problems today by killing the subsidy program.

Although administration senate leaders conceded that they probably will be beaten on the subsidy issue, they continued attempts to preserve OPA's program.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown's economic adviser, Richard Gilbert, told reporters that the cost of living would rise 50 per cent in six months if congressional restrictions, including the ban of subsidies, are allowed to stand.

The senate vote comes on a proposal by Sen. Bennett C. Clark, D., Mo., to amend a commodity credit corporation extension bill to repeal outright the subsidy section of the 1942 price control act.

The effect of both house and senate proposals would be to cancel at once the subsidy program under which the office of Price Administration reduced retail butter and meat prices this month and planned to cut coffee prices next month.

Many supporters of the ban in both the house and senate hope that by forbidding subsidy payments they can get farmers higher prices in the open market and pass the increased costs along to the consumer.

Brown has insisted that his job is to roll retail prices back to the Sept. 15, 1942 level and if he can't do it with subsidies to processors he may have to roll the reduction right back to the farmers

The house passed a CCC extension bill late yesterday, with an addition of only $500,000,000 to its borrowing power, and attached an amendment by Sen. Jesse P. Wolcott, R., Mich., forbidding the payment of subsidies without specific congressional authority.

McGregor Votes To Override Veto

Congressman J. Harry McGregor, representing Richland county and the 17th district in Washington, joined 15 other Republican congressmen and Ohio's two senators in voting to override President Roosevelt's veto of the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill.

Four Ohio Republicans, Congressmen Bolton, Bender, Lewis, and Ramey, and two Democrats, Crosser and Feighan were against overriding the presidential veto. Democratic Congressman Kirwin was not recorded as voting.

Even Great Profile's Girdle to Be Sold at Auction.

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — The financial "shallows and miseries" that beset the late John Barrymore's latter years are to be symbolized once more by the auction block.

Auctioneer Ben Seewack made known today that the "Great Profile's" $10,000 wardrobe is to go under the hammer next week as part of the series of moves to settle the star's estate.

Among the garments to be sold to the highest bidder are a wide assortment of suits that cost up to $250, dozens of pairs of multihued pajamas, shoes enough to stock a store, the way things are today, and a girdle.

DETROIT CURFEW STILL IN FORCE

All Restrictions Due to Be Lifted Monday If Quiet Continues After Riot.

DETROIT — (INS) — Detroit's midnight curfew and ban on public drinking after 10 p. m. will be retained over the week-end, Governor Harry F. Kelly announced today.

However, if the town remains "quiet and peaceful" all restrictions may be removed Monday, he said. 3,200 soldiers still patrol the city to assure order.

Simultaneously, Mayor Edward J. Jeffries "invited" Congressman Martin Dies not to come to Detroit to inquire into the causes of the riot. "The Dies committee can offer nothing but more confusion," the mayor said.

In Washington, Congressman Dies responded that the presence of his committee in Detroit "next week might do some good and certainly can do no harm."

Meanwhile, a group of 12 civic leaders—six of them Negroes—began to explore the cause of the riot and to recommend ways of preventing a recurrence of the violence that claimed a death toll of 31.

Ten recorder's court judges aided by a circuit judge settled down to the three-month task of trying 600 to 700 cases resulting from the riots.

There are also approximately 100 jury cases pending.
